COURT ACCEPTS ACTION . . .

Judges Seeking Pay Increases

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

An action for a declaratory judgment that Nebraska's district judges should be paid $22,000 annually effective last Dec. 25 was docketed Thursday by the State Supreme Court.

The original action, accepted by the high court for hearing, was brought by five plaintiff judges on behalf of all district judges in the state.

Plaintiffs are District Judges Paul J. Garrotto, Ernest A. Hubka, Bartlett E. Boyles, Theodore L. Richling and James Buckley.

Named defendants were State Administrative Services Director Robert D. McManus, State Treasurer Wayne Swanson and Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Two Bills Cited

The suit, filed by Lincoln attorney Herman Ginsburg, alleges compensation for district judges increased to $22,000 from $18,000 on Dec. 25 under two bills enacted by the 1969 Legislature and controlling constitutional provisions.

The defendant officials have refused to pay the salary increase until Jan. 13, 1971, contending the terms of the district judges does not become effective until then for pay purposes, according to Ginsburg.

The plaintiff judges also contend that retirement benefits for the district judges should be computed under LB1070 from the effective date of the $22,000 salary.

LB150, which became effective last Dec. 25, provided, "As soon as the same may be legally paid under the Constitution of Nebraska, each judge of the district court shall be paid $22,000 per annum."

A second bill, LB916, passed by the 1969 Legislature, created two additional judgeships in the Fourth District, which were filled on Jan. 16 by the appointment of Judges Richling and Buckley of Omaha, according to the suit.

The plaintiffs contend that a constitutional amendment, approved by the voters in 1962 and providing for the appointment rather than election of district judges, created terms that began upon the appointment and qualification for office of individual judges.

The suit alleges no specific terms of offices are provided for the judges, but only provisions as to when individual judges must stand for retention elections.

When Appointed

Thus, the suit contends, the terms of Judges Richling and Buckley commenced when they were appointed and qualified for office and a lawful salary of $22,000 annually then became payable to the two new judges and all other district judges in the state.

Plaintiffs also contend that LB1070, so far as it would restrict computation of retirement benefits from the effective date of the higher salary, is unconstitutional.

With the appointment of two additional Omaha judges, there are now 38 districts in the state plus two judges for the separate juvenile courts in Douglas and Lancaster counties.

Peace Outlook Brighter Today, President Says

. . . CRIME FIGHT EXEMPT FROM TIGHT BUDGET

Washington (AP) — President Nixon told the country Thursday a generation without war should be its great goal — and "the prospects for peace are far greater today than they were a year ago."

He gave second place, in his nationally broadcast State of the Union address, to "clean air, clean water, open spaces," promising "the most comprehensive and costly program in this field ever in the nation's history."

His proposals will include, he said, "a $10-billion nationwide clean-waters program."

Crime Fight Exempted

And, while he re-emphasized his determination to pare spending and achieve an inflation-fighting surplus, he exempted outlays for the fight against crime.

Nixon promised that "1971 federal spending for aiding local law enforcement will double that budgeted for 1970."

His live audience of senators, representatives, Supreme Court justices, diplomats, civil and military officials interrupted him 28 times with applause.

But on his statements on domestic issues, other than pollution, the applause came mainly from the Republican side.

'Imagination Lacking'

The House Democratic leader, Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, said the message lacked "imaginative recommendations to deal with inflation, tight money, the chaotic housing industry and our sagging economy."

But Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said Nixon made his point clearly — that what the economy needs is a government living within its means.

For details, he suggested, the Democrats might await the forthcoming budget message.

Judging from the applause, Congress liked best the thanks Nixon gave the lawmakers for what he termed bipartisan support of efforts for a just peace.

'Enemy's Hopes' Dashed

"By this action," Nixon said, "you have completely demolished the enemy's hopes that they can gain in Washington the victory our fighting men deny it in Vietnam."

"We are making progress," he said of the war.

The road to peace is difficult and dangerous, he said, but "I believe our new policies have contributed to the prospect that America may have the best chance since World War II to enjoy a generation of uninterrupted peace."

He drew repeated applause when he went on:

"Neither the defense nor the development of other nations can be exclusively or primarily an American undertaking.

"The nations of each part of the world should assume the primary responsibility for their own wellbeing. . .

U.S. To Reduce Role

"We shall be faithful to our treaty commitments, but we shall reduce our involvement and our presence in other nations' affairs."

Congress clapped when he said arms-limitations talks are best approached from "mutual self-interest rather than naive sentimentality."

But it only listened when he said a major factor for peace "will be the development of a new relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union" and when he referred to the resumption of the Warsaw talks with mainland China.

Nixon devoted nearly half the body of his speech to the problems of environment, asking whether a president in 1980 "will look back on a decade in which 70% of our people lived in metropolitan areas choked by traffic, suffocated by smog, poisoned by water, deafened by noise and terrified by crime."

Industry's Responsibility

Apparently looking to a system under which industry would have major responsibility for curbing the fouling of air, water and land, he said, "The price of goods should be made to include the costs of producing and disposing of them without damage to the environment."

For automobiles, he said, there will be "set increasingly strict standards and . . . enforcement procedures — and we shall do it now."

He promised "innovative financing methods for purchasing open space and park lands, now, before they are lost to us."

There should be national policy, he said, "as to where to build highways, locate airports, acquire land or sell land."

Reforms

Telling Congress to expect at least a dozen major programs this year, Nixon emphasized reform of the welfare system and reform of government at all levels in the direction of his "new federalism" with more power to local governments.

And he promised proposals expanding the range of opportunities, including those for expanded ownership "because in order to be secure in their human rights, people need access to property rights."

Democrats were most silent when Nixon said the blame for inflation is clear:

"In the decade of the '60s the federal government spent $57 billion more than it took in in taxes . . . the American people paid the bill for that deficit in price increases which raised the cost of living for the average family of four by $200 a month."

He said he realizes the appeal of spending programs in an election year, but "it is time to quit putting good money into bad programs, otherwise we will end up with bad money as well as bad programs."

NPPD To Get Out Of Farm Areas

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

D. W. Hill of Columbus, general manager of the newly-consolidated Nebraska Public Power District, Thursday promised rural electric leaders that the new wholesale agency "intend(s) to get out of your hair in rural farm areas."

Hill told delegates to the 34th annual convention of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association that NPPD will meet its earlier commitments to "sell our rural farm customers" to the rural electric districts.

That promise was made in exchange for the cooperation which rural districts provided in waiving their legal right to first claim on the purchase of the properties of the old Nebraska Pulbic Power System which were merged into the new district, Hill noted.

On Individual Basis

NPPD will sell its rural retail farm business to the districts on an individual basis, he said.

Hill also told rural leaders that he will propose that the NPPD board of directors "hire some outside help to make a complete study" of the wholesale rate structure.

"Until that is done, it is going to be most difficult to finalize power supply contracts with the rurals," he pointed out.

Negotiations are pending on a new long-term power supply contract between the wholesale district and its rural district customers.

Taken To Court

Proposed rate increases, which became effective Jan. 1, have been taken to court by the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative on behalf of rural districts.

Hill asked rural districts to "have some patience with us" as NPPD undertakes its new operations. The reorganized district replaces Consumers Public Power District, Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District and NPPS.

The district will need to begin planning for a new generation unit immediately, Hill said.

"We're already talking about a second unit" at the NPPD nuclear generation plant now under construction near Brownville, he pointed out.

Lead time for a second unit — whether it is conventionally-fueled or nuclear — is six years, Hill said, and the second unit will be needed by about 1976-77.

The nuclear unit at Cooper Station should be operational in 1972, "and hopefully in the spring of that year as originally scheduled," despite delays primarily caused by labor problems, Hill said.

Other problems which must be resolved are refinancing of outstanding bonds to complete the wholesale merger and the issue of power supply to municipalities, he noted.

Hopes To Avoid Fights

As for the latter, he said, "I hope we're not going to have to have these dogfights over who serves municipal loads. But, I've never run from a fight, and I won't run from this one."

NREA General Manager Dick Wilkerson outlined his plans for expanded association activities, particularly in developing "a more active and aggressive legislative program."

Rural districts must be prepared to represent the interests of their consumers in such legislative areas as labor, eminent domain, taxation and public power, Wilkerson said.

"We have a whole new future facing us," he suggested.

Must Inform Nebraskans

NREA must also be more active in public information "to inform other Nebraskans of the problems we face in rural Nebraska" and in providing "career possibilities for young people in rural areas" by pushing area and resources development programs, including expanded agri-business, Wilkerson said.

D. A. Blatchford of Columbus, general manager of the G & T Cooperative, said he believes the establishment of NPPD will improve the rural districts' power supply situation over the next few years.

And, he said, he "feel(s) sure contract problems (with the new district) will be resolved reasonably soon."

Hearing Set In Hair Case

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Van Pelt has scheduled a hearing for 1 p.m. Friday in the case of a Chadron State College student who said he was barred from registering at the college because of the length of his moustache and hair.

Robert Reichenberg Jr., 24, of Chadron, filed suit Wednesday asking for a restraining order and an injunction against a "clarification" of a school dress code that Reichenberg contends kept him from registering.

Defendant in the case is Dr. Edwin Nelson, president of Chadron State, who, according to Reichenberg's petition, composed the clarification.

Warm Spell Ends Icy Grip On City

Old Man Winter released his icy grip on Lincoln Thursday as temperatures reached above the freezing mark for the first time in more than a week.

The mercury edged to a "balmy" 43 Thursday as other points across the state recorded temperatures ranging from the high 30s into the 40s.

After several days of temperatures near or below the zero mark, the warmer temperatures were brought by a warm front from the southwest.

Grand Island reported a high of 45 Thursday, while North Platte and Chadron to the west had highs of 44.

Norfolk's high Thursday was 43. Sidney and Imperial recorded high temperatures for the state with readings of 46.

Omaha with a high of 34 was the only reporting city failing to reach the 40-degree mark Thursday.

Many Egyptians Die; Israel Captures Island And Radar

©The New York Times

Jerusalem — An Israeli force led by helicopter-borne commandos captured Thursday the Egyptian island of Shadwan at the entrance to the Gulf of Suez and prepared to remove its radar station, an Israeli spokesman said.

A senior military officer said, "We'll probably bring it back once we get the screws loose."

A larger and more technically advanced Egyptian radar station weighing seven tons was dismantled and airlifted Dec. 26 from a coastal station at Ras Ghareb, 75 miles to the north in the gulf.

Israeli authorities said the attacking force would leave once the operation was completed. They were still there Thursday night. Experts had been called in to decide if other equipment was worth removing.

Captured In 6 Hours

Shadwan, a banana-shaped island consisting mostly of rocks and coral, was captured after six hours of fighting and at a cost of 19 Egyptian and three Israeli lives, according to military reports here.

The death toll was probably higher. Two Egyptian torpedo boats racing toward the island were hit and sunk by Israeli jets 10 miles south of Shadwan during the fighting. Each boat carries 20 men.

The Israeli soldiers, all veterans of previous commando actions, were instructed to take as many prisoners as possible. By midafternoon they had captured 41 members of the Egyptian garrison.

The Israeli army spokesman said the raid must be considered "within the context of current military operations taking place as a result of Egypt's decision to renounce the cease-fire."

The spokesman sought, therefore, to associate the raid with a new level of Israeli aerial activity in the Nile Delta. Military targets near Cairo and near industrial sites have been hit four times in the last few weeks.

Israel, in effect, is conducting a pre-emptive war aimed at reducing the Egyptian military capacity to a point where a pre-emptive strike of the kind Israel launched in 1967 to end a military threat will not be required.

WORK UNDERWAY ON O ST. PROJECT

Work is progressing on improvements on O St. between Eastridge Drive and the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks. The $867,386 project calls for grading, paving, sodding and installation of culverts, traffic signals and lights. O St. will be kept open for traffic during construction of the improvements. The work being done by Abel Construction Co., and Stewart Construction Co. is scheduled to be completed about Oct. 1. Workmen are presently preparing for installation of the culverts. (Star Photo.)

Israelis Capture Egyptian Island In 6-Hour Fight

(c) New York Times News Service

Jerusalem — Israeli soldiers swooped down on a banana-shaped Egyptian island that guards the entrance to the Gulf of Suez and captured the island and 41 of its defenders after a six-hour battle, then began to remove a radar station. (More on Page 1.)

Relief Called 'Nigerian Problem'

Lagos, Nigeria — Emergency relief to heal the wounds of the Nigerian civil war is "a Nigerian problem to be solved by Nigerians," Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the country's leader, declared in a speech. (More on Page 2.)

More Executed In Iraq

Beirut, Lebanon — Eight army officers and three civilians were executed in Iraq as the repercussions of an unsuccessful right-wing coup d'etat began to spread. In addition to the largest purge to follow a Middle Eastern coup in 25 years, seven Iraqis convicted of spying for the United States were hanged. (More on Page 22.)

Carswell Speech Not Uncovered

Washington — A Justice Department source said the Nixon administration was "not aware" that a "white supremacy" speech by its intended Supreme Court nominee, Judge G. Harrold Carswell, existed. Reports of the speech, which caught the administration by surprise, revive the question of the efficiency of Justice Department research into prospective nominees. (Another story on Page 2.)

$10 Billion Cleanup Proposed

Washington — To combat pollution, President Nixon proposed a $10-billion program to clean up the nation's waters — but its annual cost would be less than what Congress has already authorized for the next year. (More on Page 2.)

French Press Condemns Deal

Paris — The French press all but unanimously condemned the government's announcement that it was selling Libya not 50 but 100 warplanes. The newspapers reacted with shock to being deceived and with concern about what they interpreted as a policy of putting oil and trade above morality.

Nixon Assesses State Of Union

Washington — President Nixon, in his State of the Union address, committed himself to achieving world peace, including a "just" settlement in Vietnam, and to rescuing the American environment from years of indifference. (More on Page 1.)

Yablonski Was To Testify

Washington, Pa. — Three men held in Cleveland were formally charged with the murders of United Mine Workers official Joseph A. Yablonski, his wife and daughter. The Yablonski murders were committed, a government attorney said in Cleveland, to keep Yablonski from testifying before a federal grand jury. (More on Page 2.)

Congress Knocks Nixon For Lack Of Specifics

World News

Washington (UPI) — Members of Congress found little fault with President Nixon's call Thursday for vigorous attacks on pollution, crime and inflation but many complained that his State of the Union address contained no specific proposals.

Coupled with the general agreement among Republicans and Democrats in both chambers of Congress that the President's speech was inspiring was the feeling that he offered no means to raise the money for the programs which he said were so critically needed.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana termed it an "impressive" speech and expressed "hope specific recommendations will be sent up shortly so that Congress can get to work."

'Very Uplifting Tone'

Mansfield's GOP counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, praised "the very uplifting tone" of the address. Scott said it "appealed to the very best in the American mood which is for a better and cleaner environment."

But Democratic Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine summed up shortcomings many congressmen found in the speech.

"The President's address was well constructed and he clearly stated the goals we all seek in the decade ahead," Kennedy said. "It is the responsibility of the Congress to make the goals and dreams of the 1970s come true. The President, unfortunately, did not give us the benefit of his specific proposals today."

"I don't see how anyone can find fault with the goals and objectives," Jackson said. "What it boils down to is how are we going to implement them?"

Muskie, the 1968 Democratic vice presidential candidate, said the speech "represented a cry with alarm" but he found it "a little difficult to know" what the President actually was prepared to do about the problems he spotlighted.

In the House, Republicans generally called the speech "great" and Democrats said they liked it in spots.

Particularly well received was the President's promise to double spending on the war against crime and his proposal to spend $10 billion over five years in an assault on environmental pollution — all while keeping the budget in balance.

'Rhetoric Fine'

Some Democrats, however, immediately questioned whether Nixon's ambitions could be realized. "The rhetoric was fine," commented Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., "but I think he's going to have a hard time putting sufficient money in the budget to accomplish the jobs he has set forth and still maintain the budget balance."

BAGGAGE CONTAINERS . . . manhandled at London air terminal.

747 Flight Late; Big Jet Half Empty

New York (AP) — A Pan American World Airways Boeing 747 jumbo jetliner landed Thursday night after a maiden round trip across the North Atlantic, an inaugural flight that was behind schedule from the start to finish.

The big plane came down at Kennedy Airport from London at 7:23 p.m. EST with only 150 passengers aboard. It had carried 332 on its eastward flight to London. Its capacity is 362.

There were 128 passenger cancellations on the return trip, perhaps the greatest number ever compiled by a single airliner.

The Pan American flight originally was due back at Kennedy at 12:25 p.m. Thursday. But after a series of delays, she lost an additional hour on the westward Atlantic flight and arrived seven hours late.

The flight was delayed six hours in New York while passengers changed to a second 747 because an engine on the first overheated and it was held up an hour in London by loading problems.

Despite this, crew members and most passengers appeared delighted by the way the ship handled once it got off the ground.

Capt. Robert M. Weeks, Pan Am's chief Atlantic pilot, who skippered the flight from New York, told newsmen: "This airplane is the finest piece of aeronautical engineering ever constructed.

"The flight on this airplane was as close to being a routine flight out of Kennedy (Airport, New York) as you can imagine."

Gowon Defends Effort In Biafra

Lagos (AP) — Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon defended his government's efforts to restore conditions to normal in defeated Biafra Thursday and angrily denounced reports that his Nigerian army troops were indifferent to suffering there.

"We don't expect miracles," the Nigerian chief of state told a news conference. "Is anyone willing to say there is not misbehavior in their own armies?"

An Associated Press dispatch Thursday from Port Harcourt, which once was Biafran, said the victorious Nigerian army is disintegrating inside the fallen territory and some of its weapons are falling into hands of hungry mobs raiding warehouses for food.

The dispatch said an officer of an international observer team had reported this in Port Harcourt. The officer said troops of Nigeria's 3rd Marine Commando Division had raped white Red Cross nurses near Orlu but he said the Nigerian government is trying to replace the 3rd Division with the 1st Division which he described as "a bit cooler."

Thousands Hungry

Western correspondents who went into the former secessionist state this week for the first time reported that thousands of people are still hungry and that government supplies are slow.

Gowon said, however, the government relief program was "progressing satisfactorily."

He announced the government had earmarked another $28 million for relief, bringing its total to $45 million.

He added that 100 Ibo doctors had already joined the relief program and that Nigerian engineers are restoring bridges and social services.

Earlier in the day, Soviet sources in Lagos said 60 Soviet doctors, mostly pediatricians, are expected here by the end of January at Nigeria's request. They will join 17 Russian doctors already here and this will give the Soviet Union the largest of the international medical teams working in Biafra. Britain announced 27 doctors and nurses have been sent from there to Biafra and eight more will follow soon.

U.S. To Supply 40,000 Tons Of Food A Month

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Thursday ordered 40,000 tons of high protein food shipped to Nigeria every month for "as long as it is needed" to help prevent starvation in the former successionist state of Biafra.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon acted after receiving a request for help from the Nigerian government.

The United States will also provide airplanes to help distribute the food, Ziegler said, and will supply 50 generators, 10,000 blankets and 10,000 hurricane lamps, all for use in hospitals.

Cities, States Would Pay For 60% Of $10 Billion Water Clean-Up Bill

By E. W. KENWORTHY

©The New York Times

Washington — President Nixon said Thursday he would propose a $10 billion program to clean up America's waters over five years. Informed officials said later the federal government would pay 40% of the cost, and states and cities 60%, under the President's plan.

The federal share would thus be $4 billion and the local share $6 billion, according to these officials.

Furthermore, they said, the federal grants would be made on a sliding scale over nine years so that the budgetary cost to the federal government would average out at about $445 million a year.

$800 Million Appropriated

This average annual cost is slightly more than half of the $800 million for the federal share of waste treatment plants which Congress appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30.

It is just about one-third of the $1.25 billion for fiscal 1971 which Congress authorized in the Clean Water Restoration Act which expires next year. And it is about one-fifth of the $2 billion a year in federal funds which the cities want for another five-year period when the present act expires.

Nixon asked for only $214 million for the waste treatment program this year. He did not say in his State of the Union message whether he intended to spend the $586 million which Congress appropriated beyond his request.

Nor did he say whether and how the federal government would pay the $760 million it now owes states and cities which have prefinanced the federal share of projects in the expectation that this share would be paid. This sum is owing because the requests of Presidents Johnson and Nixon and congressional appropriations have not been large enough to pay the "reimbursables."

Promises To 'Do It Now'

However, Nixon did pledge himself, providing Congress adopted his program, "to put modern municipal waste treatment plants in every place in America where they are needed to make our waters clean again, and do it now."

He said his program would get these facilities "built within five years."

From the explanation of the President's program by officials Thursday, it was plain that — as of this moment at least — he had abandoned a new proposal for federal financing of waste treatment plans which had been urged on him by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel and which he had been reported as favoring up until a short time ago.

Principal And Interest

Under the Hickel plan, the present grant-in-aid program would be closed out, and the cities would issue 20-year bonds for 100% of the cost of projects. The federal government would make the principal payments, and the cities would pay the interest. Hickel's program envisaged making commitments of $2 billion a year over five years for a total of $10 billion.

The Hickel proposal had been vigorously opposed by the Treasury, the Council of Economic Advisers, the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

All of them said his plan would sharply increase the burden of an already overburdened bond market, drive interest rates on bonds up sharply, be more inflationary than the grant program and make it extremely difficult for cities — especially those near the legal limit of bonded indebtedness — to issue bonds for other needs, such as schools and hospitals.

Reds Strike From Forest Lair

Saigon (AP) — Striking from a forest stronghold, enemy forces assaulted a South Vietnamese marine brigade command post Thursday in the biggest attack in the Mekong Delta in two months.

Fifteen South Vietnamese marines were killed and 41 were wounded in the two-hour mortar and ground attack, but North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops suffered 72 dead, according to field reports.

The battle occurred on the northeastern edge of the U Minh Forest, long an enemy haven, 122 miles southwest of Saigon.

Allied commanders had been expecting a major attack in the delta because of the presence of at least a division of North Vietnamese regulars, who began infiltrating in units into the delta for the first time last June.

U.S. battlefield deaths fell to 84 last week, 14 fewer than the previous week. South Vietnam lost 197 troops killed in action, the lowest government weekly toll in eight months.

Enemy deaths for the week were put at 1,797.

Since 1961, 40,226 American servicemen have been killed in combat in the Vietnam war, according to U.S. Command summaries.

Yablonski Was To Tell U.S. Jury About UMW

Cleveland, Ohio (AP) — United Mine Workers union insurgent Joseph Yablonski was killed as he was about to testify before a federal grand jury probing UMW activities, officials disclosed Thursday as murder charges were filed against three men.

The murder charges were filed in Washington County, Pa., where Yablonski, 59, his wife, Margaret, 57, and their daughter, Charlotte Joanne, 25, were found shot to death Jan. 5.

The three men were charged on three separate counts of first-degree murder. However, Dist. Atty. Jesse Costa had said earlier the men would be prosecuted only on Joseph Yablonski's killing.

The three men were arrested in Cleveland, Ohio, by the FBI Wednesday night and were charged Thursday with conspiring to kill Yablonski, obstructing justice and conspiring to interfere with Yablonski's rights as a union member.

The charges read before a U.S. commissioner here said Yablonski was about to testify before a federal grand jury convened in Washington, D.C. Sources in Washington said Yablonski, who made an unsuccessful bid to unseat UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle in a bitter union election, would have been a key witness at two federal grand jury probes, one in Washington and one in Pittsburgh, into UMW affairs.

Federal officials in Cleveland disclosed no connection between the three men and the UMW.

U.S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce set Jan. 30 for arraignment of Paul E. Gilley, 37, a house painter; Aubran W. "Buddy" Martin, 23, a laborer, and Claude Edward Vealey, 26, an unemployed parolee from the Ohio State Reformatory.

Bond was set at $250,000 each for Gilly and Martin. Bond for Vealey, who was arraigned separately and also was charged with illegal transportation of a weapon, was set at $275,000.

Senate Leaders Not Upset By Carswell's 1948 Speech

Washington (AP) — Senate leaders played down Thursday the impact of a speech Supreme Court nominee G. Harrold Carswell made 22 years ago expressing "firm, vigorous belief in the principles of white supremacy."

"Every person ought to be forgiven his youthful indiscretions if he is man enough to disown them, as he did," Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania told newsmen.

Carswell said Wednesday night, after the speech was brought to light, that the statements he had made as a 28-year-old candidate for the Georgia legislature are "obnoxious and abhorrent to my personal philosophy."

When Democratic leader Mike Mansfield was asked about Carswell's speech, he said, "Oh, no one is perfect. I don't think we ought to jump to a hasty judgment."

Asked if he thought it would have any effect on Carswell's chances for confirmation by the Senate, Mansfield said, "as of now, I wouldn't think so."

Scott said, "My opinion is that he should be confirmed and that he will be confirmed."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the assistant Democratic leader, said he was distressed when he learned of the speech Cardwell had made.

Knights Of Ak-Sar-Ben Cited For 4-H Support

Dr. E. F. Frolik, dean of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Thursday night paid tribute to the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben for their 25 years of support of the statewide 4-H leader training program.

Speaking at the annual State 4-H Conference banquet at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, Dean Frolik noted that the partnership between the University's State 4-H office and Ak-Sar-Ben in this area began with the first state-wide 4-H Leader Conference in 1946.

"This partnership has resulted in a continuing program to help 4-H leaders be informed," he commented. Since the first conference, more than 16,000 persons have attended 4-H conferences and district training meetings in which Ak-Sar-Ben had a part, Dean Frolik stated.

Dean Frolik also praised Ak-Sar-Ben for its continuing sponsorship of the 4-H livestock show, the world's largest junior event of its kind; the backing from the civic organization in developing the State 4-H Camp near Halsey; and its long-term support of an extensive scholarship program for College of Agriculture and Home Economics students. More recently, Ak-Sar-Ben has extended valuable support to the National Agricultural Youth Institute, which originated in Nebraska in 1967.

Enrollment Up

In another speaking appearance at the same conference for County 4-H Council members, Dean Frolik termed as "encouraging" a significant increase in Nebraska 4-H enrollment.

"Some of this has been the result of new programs designed to attract and benefit urban youth, but during a five-year period, farm youth enrollment increased by 10.7% — at a time when farm population was declining," he said.

An important supplement to the 1970 statewide 4-H program will be work with youth in 4-H and food and nutrition groups as a part of the pilot program in Nebraska to improve diets of low-income families, Dean Frolik reported.

Leaders of youngsters who unwisely pick out and reward those they like while excluding others in a group are sometimes guilty of "accidently brainwashing" the youngsters, failing in leadership communication and espirit de corp development of the group, according to Elmer W. Schwieder Jr., of Iowa State University.

Speaking at the conference, Schwieder is an associate professor in the Department of Human Environment at ISU.

He added that youth in today's society does look to the older generation for good leadership — but it is difficult for them to become involved in any issues in which the older generation is no more actively participating.

The former social caseworker and certified social worker commented that "youngsters would be freer in expressing ideas to leaders if they knew that the ideas would be accepted, at least for the sake of being an idea." Deviates and social isolates, groups he named as being most misunderstood in our society, would benefit from such an approach. Shutting them away from society does not solve their problem, he added.

16 Groups Honored

Earlier Thursday Dr. John L. Adams, director of the Agricultural Extension Service at NU, presented framed certificates to representatives of 16 organizations and firms in Nebraska for their contributions to the Nebraska 4-H program.

Names of donors and length-of-service to 4-H are:

45 Years — Lincoln Chamber of Commerce; Omaha Chamber of Commerce; Omaha Livestock Exchange; and Union Stockyards Company of Omaha.

30 Years—Omaha World-Herald.

25 Years — Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce; and Security Mutual Life Insurance Company, Lincoln.

20 Years — The Folger Coffee Company, Kansas City; and Nebraska Rural Electric Association.

15 Years — Nebraska Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders Association.

10 Years — Nebraska Cow-Belles; and University of Nebraska Rodeo Association.

Antique Tools Featured At Auction Of Nursery

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — Nine decades of nursery operation went over the auction block Thursday in the form of everything from potato planters to a hand cider press.

But owner Roy Hurlburt, who was born into the business 79 years ago, declined to pronounce a full benediction. He'll still be around for a bit of tree trimming, he assured the clusters of old friends.

"I'm not exactly quitting, just backing up a bit," he announced as the sale opened. "If you know me, you know I'll probably even scare up a little nursery stock to sell."

But Fairbury Nurseries as such became history with the last bid elicited by auctioneer Harold Siegel. Walking plows, horsecollars and antique wood stoves helped recount its story.

Known as Fairbury Nurseries since 1898, the business had evolved from the old Carpenter and Gage Company. It had been one of five bustling nurseries in the vicinity of Bower — a community nine miles north of Fairbury now marked by a lone farm house and school.

The nursery gained regional fame through its shipments of seed and "most anything that grew." Hurlburt's father and uncle, C. M. and Lew Hurlburt, ran the business along with an aunt, Mrs. Millie Hurlburt Burbridge.

"We even printed catalogs in the early days and ran ads in more than 50 newspapers," said Roy. "We moved to Fairbury in 1905 and have been in the same building ever since."

The owner's daughter, Ella Mae, has been associated with the nursery as bookkeeper. The building being closed had been used as a nursery since 1884.

Getting the most attention at the auction was a 12-horse tree plow, a curiosity even to the oldest oldtimers present. It sold for $95.

"It's been over 65 years since anybody saw 12 horses hitched to that plow," said Hurlburt. "The soil had less clay here at Fairbury, so we only needed eight."

Nebraska News

Republican committeeman, said it "has become a normal thing for the party to indirectly help incumbents"' with primary campaign expenses.

Gov. Tiemann said he had no plans to comment on any of Langford's statements.

Langford Writes Spiro Concerning GOP Fund

Omaha (AP) — Jack Langford, a Republican candidate for Nebraska governor, said Thursday he has written to Vice President Spiro Agnew concerning the use of proceeds of a dinner in Lincoln Feb. 9, at which Agnew is scheduled to speak.

The $50-a-plate dinner, billed as a "Tribute to Gov. Norbert Tiemann," has been the subject of some controversy, mainly concerning use of the money.

"I don't want to stop the dinner and I don't want Agnew to stay away," said the Kearney State College political science teacher.

Langford said his letter asked Agnew to specify that funds from the dinner should be placed in escrow for the general election campaign of whomever wins the Republican primary election.

Langford 'Desperate'

But the chairman of the dinner, E. J. Faulkner of Lincoln, said Langford is "desperate for something to talk about and bidding for publicity." He said funds from the dinner may be used for the primary election expenses of Gov. Tiemann.

Langford contends it is wrong for the party organization to promote the dinner unless the funds are to be used for the winner of the primary.

Curtis Applauds Nixon's Speech

Washington (AP) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., applauded Thursday President Nixon's State of the Union comments on problems of crime, welfare and rural areas.

"The speech was permeated with good common sense of the Nebraska variety,'' said Curtis.

Nixon's reference to rural America "indicated that in his mind the small cities, the towns and the farms are entitled to a fair place in the sun," said Curtis.

The Nebraska senator said Nixon's comments on crime were ''forthright'' and "outstanding" and his proposals for change in the welfare program "indicate his realization of the failure of our present program."

Blaze Destroys Bartlett Church

Bartlett (UPI) — An early morning fire Thursday completely destroyed the United Methodist Church here.

The fire was discovered about 4:30 a.m., and had consumed most of the structure before firemen were called.

Cause of the blaze was believed to be a faulty furnace.

Senior Recital Set

Peru — Ronald Iles, a Peru State College senior from Burnside, Iowa, will present his senior tuba recital Sunday at 3 p.m. in Benford Recital Hall of Jindra Fine Arts Center at Peru. His wife is the former Greta Bernadt of Wymore, also a senior at Peru State.

Court Asked To Void Nuclear Plant 'Cost Plus' Contracts

Columbus (AP) — George W. Johansen, a Columbus building contractor, asked the Platte County District Court Thursday to void "cost plus" contracts he said were entered into for construction of nuclear power plants at Brownville and Hallam, Neb.

Cites Law

In his action filed by his attorney, Dean G. Kratz of Omaha, Johansen cited sections of the Nebraska law which he contended expressly forbids a public power district to enter into a contract for work exceeding $5,000 without competitive bidding and require that directors of any Nebraska public power district shall award contracts to the bidders "who submit the lowest and best bids."

Johansen alleged that the Nebraska Public Power System — including Consumers Public Power District as a result of the recently consumated merger — has entered into contracts with the Stearns Roger Corporation, a Denver, Colo., construction firm, without competitive bidding.

In a statement issued in connection with the suit, Johansen said that "by entering into this cost-plus contract . . . Consumers has squandered several million dollars" and that he is one of the many people who, as customers of the public utility, "are eventually going to have to pay this bill."

Johansen said Consumers contends the cost-plus law does not apply to them, but he held the public is entitled to a judicial determination of the issue.

Schools To Reopen Friday As Water Tank Leaks Fixed

Cedar Bluffs — Schools are scheduled to resume Friday following a day and a half dismissal due to repair of leaks in the municipal water tanks.

Supt. Charles Runty said students were sent home after lunch Wednesday in an effort to conserve the town's dwindling water supply after leaks were discovered in the two municipal water tanks.

However, Runty said everything was expected to be back to normal by Friday morning.

Village Marshal Albert Jessen found the leaks Tuesday night and discovered water covering the floor of the city hall more than knee-deep.

"I guess the water tanks sprung leaks because there was too much pressure," he said.

The tanks, 36 feet long and eight feet wide, hold a total of about 30,000 gallons. One was completely emptied by the leaks, Jessen said.

The tanks are the only water supply for the town, located just southwest of Fremont in Saunders County. The town has a population of 600 persons.

'Nebraska Should Persuade Med Grads To Remain Here'

Sidney (AP) — Nebraska should persuade its medical and nursing school graduates to remain in the state, the Legislative Council committee on health problems was told here.

Daryl Conger, Sidney, president of the State Association of Physical Therapists, told the State Association of Physical Therapists, that about two thirds of the medical and nursing graduates from Nebraska schools leave the state after they complete their studies.

State Sen. Henry Pedersen, committee chairman, said the committee has been told that about 70% of the physicians in Nebraska who are younger than 65 practice in either Lincoln or the Omaha area.

He said more than half of the older physicians live outstate and are not being replaced when they die or retire.

The committee has held hearings in a number of Nebraska communities in its study of rural health needs.

There are 13 counties in Nebraska, primarily in the Sand Hills area, that have no physicians at all, Sen. Pedersen said.

Testifying before the group at Sidney were three local physicians, Drs. C. J. Cornelius, Calvin Cutright and C. B. Dorwart.

Seeks Re-Election

Madison (UPI) — Madison County Sheriff Burt Ray Jr. has filed for re-election on the Republican ticket. Ray is currently completing his third term. He is the son of a former deputy sheriff of Madison County.

Frerichs-Meier Duo-Piano Recital Set For Sunday

Seward — Ken Frerichs, music instructor at East Texas University, is returning to Concordia for a duo-piano recital with Marjorie Meier of the Concordia music faculty. The recital is to be given on Sunday at 8 p.m. at Heine Recital Hall.

Frerichs taught piano on the Concordia faculty for five years before moving to Texas, and duo recitals with Miss Meier were an annual event.

Martin Honored For His Service To Green Thumb

Adams — Kenneth M. Martin of Adams, field supervisor of the Nebraska Green Thumb Project, received a plaque for outstanding service in the administration and operation of the Green Thumb Project in Nebraska.

The presentation was made in Washington, D.C., by Tony Dechant, National Farmers Union president. He commended Martin for his service beyond the call of duty.

Rockets Tested

New Delhi (AP) — Four Indian-made Rohini rockets were tested successfully at south India's Thumba Equatorial Rocket Station near Trivandrum and more launchings are due, a military spokesman announced.

Charges Filed Against Youths In Fatal Crash

Papillion (UPI) — Charges of motor vehicle homicide were filed in Sarpy County Court against two 18-year-old youths in connection with the death of a Papillion man early Saturday in a traffic accident.

Sarpy County Attorney Dixon Adams said the charges were against John Gibilisco, 18, of Lavista, and Roland O. Godsey, 18, of Papillion.

The victim of the accident, Philip H. Comer, 26, of Papillion, was killed in a head-on crash on Eighty-fourth street one-half mile south of state Highway 370. Gibilisco is still hospitalized from the crash.

Both were alone in their cars at the time of the crash.

Godsey was driving a third car, authorities said.

Adams said there was evidence Gibilisco and Godsey contributed to the crash.

Nominees Listed For 3 Academies

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Robert V. Denney, R-Neb., announced nominees who will compete for 1970 appointments at the U.S. Air Force, Military and Naval Academies.

The principal nominees are:

Air Force Academy — David P. Fischbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fischbach, Lincoln.

Military Academy — Robert Weitzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chancellor Weitzel, Seward.

Naval Academy — Gregory Adkisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Adkisson; and Kirk Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Swanson, all of Lincoln.

Your questions answered about Lincoln Memorial Park's

GARDEN MAUSOLEUM

Why A Garden Mausoleum?

For those families in the Lincoln area who prefer above-ground entombment for memorialization of departed loved ones, Lincoln Memorial Park is expanding its facilities to provide the most beautiful mausoleum complex in the Middle West.

Why is above-ground burial preferred?

For the peace of mind that comes from knowing your departed loved ones rest securely in the permanent protection of clean, dry chambers, or crypts, as if sleeping in the confines of an immaculately kept room.

Is this something new?

No. Throughout history—from Biblical days to the Pyramids of Egypt, to our modern mausoleums—man has sought to honor the memory of those who were cherished with the dignity of above-ground entombment.

Is mausoleum entombment more expensive?

Considering the savings involved in not having to buy a cemetery lot, an interment vault, or monuments plus paying for other expenses such as preparation of graves, the cost of mausoleum entombment compares favorably to that of ground burial — particularly now, while pre-construction discounts are available.

What about future costs?

Perpetual Care Funds at Lincoln Memorial Park are being expanded to provide for maintenance of the Garden Mausoleum forever.

Why make plans now?

By reserving space for your family in our Garden Mausoleum now, you can select from choice locations—take advantage of special pre-construction discounts—and, be spared the mental anguish and expense of this inevitable obligation at time of need.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The news reports now flowing out of conquered Biafra tell a story at least as pathetic as earlier fears had anticipated. Deluged with offers of help and admonitions to show mercy to the Biafrans, the Nigerian federal government stormed back that it would take care of its own people.

The government said that there was plenty of food on hand and that the only problem was one of distribution. It stated that the rebel population would be fairly treated and welcomed back as full citizens of the country.

Several days later, newsmen were permitted to enter the conquered territory and the story they have told is one of abuse and starvation. The population has been abused by Nigerian troops and vast numbers of people, including many children, are starving to death.

Deplorable conditions of living are reported and widespread suffering is seen. One of the latest news reports said that the federal government has been stunned and embarrassed by the news reports.

The entire situation seems to be a chaotic one in which all the normal disciplines of society have broken down. Perhaps it was to be expected but one might hope that the world had outgrown such things, that a victor in this day and age would no longer look for spoils, but rather, for newly afforded opportunities to serve the cause of mankind.

The federal government, if it does not solve this problem quickly, will reap a harvest of hatred and disillusionment. It will store up for itself great numbers of people who harbor in their hearts an awful animosity for the government under which they must live.

On the contrary, these people could be turned into loyal subjects. They could be transformed into citizens thankful of a government which gave them back their humanity and even life itself. What an asset for the nation this would be compared to the liabilities that are being encouraged.

Nor has the rest of the world seemed to learn much of anything from the Nigerian war. Almost daily, news accounts tell of military aid going from one nation or another to some rebel group or some established official government.

Pockets of revolution are festering throughout Africa and conflicts between nations continue in all parts of the world. The disheartening story coming out of Biafra has seemed to impress the world very little. Our concern for human life remains much less than it ought to be.

If it is dismayed by the news report, the national government need only open its eyes. It can see for itself what the newsmen have seen and it could then act to end the suffering and hardship that exist.

Perhaps the national government has not known of the starvation and persecution that are reported. One hopes this is the case and that the situation has now been clarified. If so, relief operations should begin immediately and dignity once again restored to the land.

And from Biafra, we might look at ourselves. Despite the efforts of recent years, 25 million citizens of our own nation are below the poverty level ($3,600 for a family of four). Many of us seem not to know about that, too.

Either we do not know or we do not care. If we cared, we could correct the situation overnight. We have an abundance of food and other forms of wealth with which to meet the human needs of all our people.

There simply is no valid reason for anyone in this nation actually being hungry, much less starving, but such situations do exist. If we can criticize conditions in Biafra, how much more subject to criticism are we for the poverty in which millions of our own people live?

But we continue with cumbersome bureaucracy which denies to many people even the meager sustenance of life to which we have said they are entitled. Conditions in Biafra are surely lamentable but we have some things right here in our own backyard that cry out for our attention but receive only our indifference.

'It's Not An Enemy Attack— They're Friendly Fellow-Americans'

Skeleton In The Closet

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama long, long ago was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He was officially forgiven, and has since enjoyed a distinguished tenure on the high court that has lasted upwards of three decades.

Lyndon Johnson toed the southern line in Congress for years as a matter of political expediency but in his last years in the Senate and as president, his record of promoting civil rights legislation was and is unequaled by any politician in our history, other than Hubert Humphrey.

It has now been brought to light, perhaps needlessly, from the official records of Wilkinson County, Ga., that an ambitious, youthful G. Harrold Carswell, fresh from law school and running as a candidate for the Georgia legislature, declared before an American Legion audience that he would always be governed by the principles of white supremacy. "Segregation of the races is proper and the only practical and correct way of life in our states . . . I have always so believed and shall always so act," the candidate said in 1948.

Carswell, now President Nixon's nominee to fill a Supreme Court vacancy, repudiated those statements ahead of the investigation of his fitness to serve by the Senate Judiciary Committee. "There is nothing in my private life, nor is there anything in my public record of some 17 years (as an attorney and judge in the federal judicial system), which could possibly indicate that I harbor racist sentiments or the insulting suggestion of racial superiority," he said Wednesday. His record, although not liberal by most standards, would apparently bear him out.

How many people in positions of responsibility could stand this sort of fierce scrutiny of their unfortunate statements of the past and the implications that could be drawn from them now. On this point, it's not fair to judge a man on remarks he made 22 years ago as a young, aspiring office-seeker. Many other good men would be caught in the same trap.

Housing Situation A Mess

As everyone but the government seemed to expect, the national housing situation is a mess. What has happened is the product of high interest rates — rates that have not stopped inflation but have hit hard at isolated segments of the economy and individuals therein.

The cost of living in 1969 went up 6.1 per cent, the highest for nearly two decades. If high interest rates have curbed inflation, it certainly doesn't show. Additionally, many industries report plans for continued expansion this year. Labor unions continued to squeeze out huge pay increases and the cost of goods and services continues upward.

But the one thing that really suffers is housing. A spokesman for the Nixon administration has attributed the housing recession to inflation which made the mortgages more expensive. That is nonsense. What has made mortgages more expensive are high interest rates and they are the planned product of the present administration.

And while the interest rates have gone up, the cost of housing, not considering credit, has skyrocketed. The value of homes has, in some areas, gone up as much as 25 per cent in the short period of a single year.

Obviously, higher interest rates have not solved the cost problem in housing but have only aggravated the situation. And there is serious doubt that those high rates have been very effective in fighting inflation on all fronts. We still believe such rates to be one of the worse tools available for cooling off the economy.

Wall Street's Regulation Gap

WASHINGTON — The nation's 35 million investors not only are plagued by plunging stock prices and piling paperwork, but the brokers who handle stock transactions are so poorly regulated that they have been getting away with law violations.

This column has turned up evidence, including official documents labeled "confidential," that the securities market is policed by most reluctant regulators.

The New York Stock Exchange, for instance, has shown a strange leniency toward brokerage firms that have been caught fleecing their customers. The Securities and Exchange Commission, set up to protect the public, has also been slow to act.

Some brokerage firms, meanwhile, have blacklisted employes who cooperated with officials to expose wrongdoing.

In one case, it took congressional heat to get the SEC to move against 12 Lockheed officials, who are accused of dumping company stock because they had inside dope on a cost scandal. They knew that Lockheed had overcharged the Air Force for the controversial C5A transport plane.

Before the scandal hit the headlines, the 12 insiders allegedly began selling their stock while the ordinary stockholders took a financial drubbing.

The SEC took testimony from only eight witnesses during its first four months of investigation. Not until Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., began asking angry questions did the SEC begin swearing in new witnesses and sending out for field reports.

Yet even now, eight months after the probe began, there is no SEC report and no action against any of them. One of the accused officials, former Vice President G. R. Makepeace, actually has moved into a high-level job with the Defense Department.

☆ ☆ ☆

Even more curious is the case of McDonnell & Co., a 65-year-old firm whose activities have shaken the securities community to its roots.

Documents show the company was in trouble as early as October 21, 1968. The SEC learned that McDonnell hadn't complied with the "net capital" provision of SEC regulations, a vital clause that protects the investor.

While the SEC dillydallied, McDonnell struggled to set things right. But corporate goofs, including a computer snafu and law violations by McDonnell employes, soon had the firm on the edge of crisis.

The company hired former Postmaster General Larry O'Brien, a man with excellent political connections, as president. But he quit after seven months, as one confidential document puts it, over "the firm's financial difficulties."

Another official investigative record charges McDonnell with violations "of virtually every major SEC and New York Stock Exchange rule governing broker-dealers." These include:

"Failure to comply with the net capital rule, failure to comply with the margin requirements of the Federal Reserve Board, manipulations of customers' accounts (and) falsification of actual purchase or sale prices to customers."

McDonnell's problems forced it to shut down or sell all but three of its 26 offices, and to cut back drastically in other areas. In all this, the SEC took minor suspension action and the Stock Exchange indulged the firm with similar wrist-slapping.

In fairness, McDonnell did fire or suspend some offending employes. Now, a year later, there is still no SEC report. This is stressed by the company itself, which told this column: "There is no action pending against the firm, either at the SEC or at the New York Stock Exchange."

☆ ☆ ☆

So serious are the McDonnell and Lockheed cases that Congressman Moss already is deep in an investigation. He is also sponsoring a bill to give the small investor the kind of protection he gets in federally insured banking institutions. Moss fears the $25 million pool, set up by the Stock Exchange, might not prove enough to protect accounts in a full-fledged Wall Street scandal.

Meanwhile the small shareholder has only his broker's good name to assure him his money is safe.

It would be unfair to lay the fault entirely at SEC's door. The watchdog agency, whose left hand isn't always coordinated with the right hand, rushes from case to case like an overworked fire department unable to put out any one fire properly.

The SEC is grossly understaffed and underpaid. In the Lockheed case, for example, two of the four key staff investigators quit in the middle of the probe to take better jobs.

Congress is clearly to blame for small-mindedly assuming that the miserly staff and ranshackle rules set up when Joe Kennedy headed the SEC in the 30s are adequate for the stock market explosion of the 70s.

☆ ☆ ☆

George Wallace has changed his post office box number in Montgomery, Ala., from 1968 to 1972 and is making other preparations to run for president again. Apparently, however, he is better at making speeches on the political stump than he would be at running the nation.

There is increasing evidence, indeed, that he can't even run his own political party. In almost every state where the American Independent Party is organized, it is torn by dissension, the finances are in disarray and often there's uncertainty over who's in charge.

When the national officials of George Wallace's party meet next month in St. Louis, the doggonedest donnybrook in American politics can be expected. They will contend with disputes, dissension and the open attempt by the John Birch Society to take over their movement.

White House Safety Set-Up May Involve Political Gain

WASHINGTON — Liz Carpenter in her new book, "Ruffles and Flourishes," sheds brief, interesting light on the extent to which the White House goes to protect a president's security.

Mrs. Carpenter was staff director for Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson in the last administration. Liz currently is promoting her book with the verve of a Welcome Wagon lady in a new subdivision.

Much of the book is fun and games, but in one brief passage Mrs. Carpenter tells of her amazement at the "highly sensitive wiring" in the White House for protection of a president and his family.

"Hundreds of complicated devices to detect possible bombs alert the Secret Service," she writes. "On one occasion, a White House secretary who had undergone medical tests with radioactive materials for a thyroid condition set off the alarm system. In moments, she found herself surrounded by suspicious agents and a White House policeman with his pistol removed from its holster."

☆ ☆ ☆

If this were the situation during the Johnson era, it is a safe assumption that security measures have been tightened and more sophisticated equipment is being used during the Nixon era.

Equally, it is a reasonable assumption that a president has no realistic comprehension of the measures taken, theoretically, for his protection.

When and if he does learn about it, a human factor comes into play — how much of this electronic "protection," a polite word for surveillance, might be used from time to time to keep tabs on those who would sully his good name? Plainer yet, how much of this surveillance might be used out of presidential curiosity or, bluntly, to get a line on political opponents?

For example, the White House does not have to go into court in order to examine revenue tapes on anybody's telephone. These tapes by which the telephone company makes an automated record of every long distance call could be used to tell the White House virtually every toll call made to and from a given individual's telephone.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is not wire-tapping. But neither is it the sort of privacy many Americans assume they have when they pick up the phone and call someone in another area.

Furthermore, this business about telephone revenue tapes is far from hypothetical. This practice was followed on occasion during the Kennedy administration.

It is hard to argue against such twilight zone jiggering with privacy. The defense always can be security, the safety of a president. In some known past cases, safety was not a consideration. Annoyance and irritation, yes. But not safety.

New Ideas For Our Postal Service

NEW YORK — Well, pen pals, the Post Office optimists have made another stab at living up to that pesky "neither sleet . . . nor snow" jazz. On top of regular first-class mail (for seven cents), they're playing with the idea of grade-A-gold-star-super-duper-first-class (which'll cost you 10 cents).

But don't scream until you hear the rest: They GUARANTEE overnight delivery for your dime. Almost, anyway. (And even that's an improvement.)

Outside of that "almost" (which has an ominous sound to it) this may just be the very gimmick the poor old post office has been scratching for years.

Granted, it'll cost you four more pennies to get that important letter delivered in one day. But it's just what you pay now for air mail—and this, they say, will be just as fast.

Then, for mail you're in no particular hurry about (like that check to your landlord, for instance) you would pay only seven cents.

Okay, so the current first-class rate is only six cents per ounce. You really didn't think that would last, did you?

☆ ☆ ☆

The alternative to the slower-for-seven cents and overnight-for-10-cents rate is an over-all boost to eight cents for all first-class mail. And you take your chances on when it'll get there, just as you do now.

Think how much the new plan would save the folks who now have to resort to "special delivery" to get an urgent letter there on time. Like that business executive, to cite a not-very-unusual case, who spent 45 cents for a special delivery stamp, plus the regular six cents, to rush a document 10 blocks down the street. It arrives six days later.

(Our office has warned us not to use special delivery, because it usually takes longer than the regular, and THAT'S bad enough.)

Wouldn't you rather pay a dime — and get it there — than 51 cents for delivery that's definitely not very special?

That's the argument President Nixon's aides will use if they can work up their courage to spring this idea on Congress. They're understandably nervous about it. After all, the seven-cent rate means we'll be paying more — for slower service.

But that's nothing new in these lackadaisical days. And the people who dreamed up this scheme say it could bring in $400 million a year to the almost-bankrupt postal system.

☆ ☆ ☆

What's more, it would save millions more on labor. The way things are now, the real "rush hour" comes at night, when mini-skirted secretaries flood the post office with a huge surge of mail.

This means 75 per cent of the staff has to work nights — and for that inconvenience they get a 10 per cent fatter pay check.

Under the proposed plan only the premium first-class mail would be sorted and processed at night. And it would take fewer people to do it. The rest would be saved until morning when the day workers could handle it.

It might not be a perfect solution. But the alternatives are worse.

One is that extra penny for first-class. Another would stop all Saturday deliveries. And another, one official says, is to let "service deteriorate in other ways," although there are people who don't see how it could. (Unless, of course, the 10-cent special turns out to be no better than the 51-cent special.)

Besides, we all get plenty of mail we'd be just as happy to wait a couple of days for. Like bills . . . or letters from college asking for extra money.

Except that I know one young man who'd consider the letter "urgent" and slap a dime stamp in it. (Even then, it's cheaper than a phone call — collect.)

New York Ponders Problems Of Mass Transit; Proposal To Increase Bridge And Tunnel Tolls

WASHINGTON — Finding a proper relationship between the poor inner city and the prosperous outer ring of suburbs is a genuine American dilemma. Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy debated whether to enrich the life of the ghetto, which requires taxing the suburbs, or to disperse the ghetto's residents into the suburbs. The Kerner Commission wrestled somewhat inconclusively with the same problem, and one of the most controversial questions deriving from it is whether to bus school children from ghetto to suburb, or vice versa, or both.

That is why the continuing dispute in New York City over how to finance a mass transit system that no longer pays for itself in farebox receipts is of more interest and broader importance than many New Yorkers, fuming over a 10-cent fare increase (to 30 cents a ride, with no transfers between bus and subway) may realize.

Solid experience virtually everywhere it has been tried suggests that mass transit fare increases usually reduce passenger volume. That is what the New York system least needs, since it lessens the revenue effect of the increase and throws more auto traffic into streets along many of which it is already faster to walk than to ride. Even so, both Theodore W. Kheel, who was chairman of a committee to save the 20-cent fare, and John J. Gilhooley, a former transit authority member, say flatly that the fare will have to go up again in a year or so unless new forms of subsidy are provided.

Kheel has made proposals, arising from this background, that would break the vicious cycle of rising fares, declining volume and ever more crowded streets; more important, these proposals suggest an imaginative and practical means of bringing the suburb to the aid of the ghetto without a general tax rise. The idea is to double — or even more sharply increase — bridge and tunnel tolls into Manhattan Island, with the proceeds providing the necessary subsidy funds for the subway.

It is a literal fact that suburbanites driving into urban places of work and entertainment lay an untold dollar and manpower burden of street maintenance and traffic policing on the city. Their cars, through the noise they create, the space the absorb both moving and parked, and the pollutants they gush into the air, not to mention the dangers they pose to pedestrians and drivers, are a primary cause of the tension, unease and discomfort of city life.

These are facts anyone can observe for himself, not merely in Manhattan but in any downtown area of America — not least in Washington, under the windows of the White House. More important even than these dubious contributions to the urban scene is the less obvious role of the automobile in the very creation of suburbs and decaying cities. The suburb, as we know it today, is not really imaginable in anything but an automobile culture; and the development of concentric suburban rings around every major city has been a leading cause of the financial, business and residential rot that has set in at the heart of most of them.

That developjent also makes every inner city, and Manhattan literally, something of an island. It makes profound good sense, therefore, to raise substantially if not prohibitively the cost of reaching that island by auto. Its streets and parking facilities would be relieved of congestion; a prime source of air and noise pollution would be diminished with splendid consequences for everyone's lungs, eardrums and nerves; city traffic and street costs might decline, or services improve; fewer police might have to be diverted from crime to traffic; and mass transit passenger volume and revenues ought to increase greatly.

Even those determined automobile commuters who paid the higher tolls would benefit — if not financially, at least in increased efficiency of bridges, tunnels and freeways; and that result could be enhanced by pegging tolls at their highest during what are now rush hours, in an effort to level out traffic volume through the day.

Most important, however, would be the provision of subsidy by relatively prosperous suburbanites to hard-up inner city dwellers who must depend on mass transit. This would be altruism only at first glance because, in addition to holding down living costs in the ghetto and freeing municipal resources for improved services, it would improve the quality of city life for everyone.

Safety Director's Office Is Abolished By Mayor

Effective Friday, the office of public safety director will no longer exist.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Thursday that he is abolishing the office with the retirement of Public Safety Director Emmett Junge, whose duties will be reassigned to other departments.

Junge retires Friday after serving nearly 15 years as the head of a department whose functions have changed during that period.

EMMETT JUNGE

Started In 1954

Junge started his career in city government in 1954 as director of the Department of Public Welfare and Safety. At that time, he was responsible for parks, recreation, police, fire and health and for the municipal gas station, the public scales, City Hall and other city buildings.

Since then, a Department of Parks and Recreation has been created and most of the health activities were placed under the responsibility of the health director.

Starting Friday, "Police Chief Joe Carroll and Fire Chief Dallas Johnson will report directly to the mayor," Schwartzkopf said.

The mayor said he felt that the two positions should remain in the classified, rather than director, status. Directors serve at the pleasure of the mayor and may be fired by the mayor whenever he chooses.

After Review

Schwartzkopf said he reached his decision to abolish the position of public safety director after reviewing a survey of the administrative organization of city government, consulting with the City Council and talking with Junge and other city officials.

Junge, when informing the mayor of his retirement plans, had urged the mayor to abolish the position.

Public Administration Service of Chicago said in its 1964 review of the city's administrative organization that "it is obvious that the divisions within this department have, to say the least, widely divergent areas of interest, and their operations are characterized by a degree of independence that reflects the absence of common interests."

The consulting firm had recommended that the Department of Parks, Safety and Public Property be abolished and its functions reassigned.

Money Matters

Junge's responsibility in health matters lately dealt only with handling money matters.

He also served as an ex-officio member of the City-County Health Board. Health Department Director Dr. George Underwood will now have full responsibility over all health department financial matters.

The municipal gas station, public scales and public property will become the responsibility of the Finance Department, according to the mayor.

He said ordinances are now being prepared to reassign the various functions of Junge's office.

Commenting on Junge's retirement Schwartzkopf said, "Junge has been a dedicated city official who discharged his duties with integrity and sincerity. But with his retirement, I feel we can move ahead now without the position and still continue to provide the important services."

For Some New Fathers, Cigars Just Aren't Enough

Some fathers give out cigars for such occasions, but when Rick Wayne was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Don Katt, Rick's dad wanted to tell more people in a bigger way. So he put up a sign. And to make sure everyone knew that the youngster was a boy, he not only painted "It's A Boy" on the sign, he also framed the message with a couple of football players. Rick, who weighed 8 pounds 14 ounces when he was born Jan. 14, came home this week. His parents are shown with the giant message at their home at 7210 Kearney. (Star Photo)

Clinton Residents Cite Top Concerns

Clinton area residents Thursday cited poor housing, streets, garbage and inadequate bus service as the major problems of the area.

Approximately 60 Clinton residents met to discuss problems of the area in a meeting sponsored jointly by the Lincoln Action Program and the Clinton Home and Neighborhood Development (HAND).

On the subject of streets, residents said the area needs more street lighting, paving of dirt roads and flashing signals at railroad tracks.

On other subjects, residents said the area needs a day care center and an outlet for food stamps.

The meeting was held so that staff members of HAND could hear residents on what they feel are the major concerns which need attention.

The Clinton area was divided into four geographical areas with 27th and Holdrege as the dividing lines. Residents from the four areas, plus occupants of the low-income housing Project at 23rd and Y Sts., were then elected to the HAND Council.

Elected were Angelece Temple, Sally Sawyer, Ivan Upchurch, Judy Songer, Diana Brock, Pearl Leaks, Thomas Staten and Carol Sitler.

Sheriff Is Named In Alienation Of Affections Suit

Alliance (UPI) — A $100,000 alienation of affections suit was filed in District Court here naming Box Butte County Sheriff Freddie Marsh defendant.

The suit, brought by Alliance City Policeman Donald Montgomery, alleges alienation of affections of the plaintiff's wife over a period of the past eight months.

The sheriff filed a suit in County Court naming Montgomery as defendant in an action asking for $750 for damages resulting from what was termed in the petition as "a violent and malicious assault and beating of the plaintiff."

Ever Hear Of Bullheaded Bureaucracy?

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — Cindy Pitchford, 13, knew the school rules prohibited slacks on girls. But she thought that under the circumstances the school might understand.

A fire the previous night had destroyed the Pitchford home and burned all of Cindy's clothes except what she was wearing — slacks and a top. So she wore them to school — and got into trouble.

"Cindy had the choice of sitting in the school office all day, or us picking her up," said her mother, Mrs. Clifford Pitchford. "We picked her up and kept her all day here at the office where we work."

Cindy will have to make up two tests she missed on the day she wore the slacks.

2 Judges Disqualify Themselves; Missourian To Hear Fugate Case

The two U.S. District Court judges for Nebraska have disqualified themselves in the habeas corpus case of Caril Ann Fugate, and a federal judge from Missouri will hear the case Feb. 2.

Miss Fugate, 25, is serving a life term in the Nebraska State Women's Reformatory on a 1958 conviction of aiding mass killer Charles Starkweather in the slaying of a Bennet schoolboy.

Nebraska Federal Judges Richard Robinson and Robert Van Pelt disqualified themselves in a document filed Thursday.

Elmo B. Hunter, federal judge for the district of weestern Missouri, was named to hear the case in the Nebraska district.

No reason for the Nebraska judges' action was given in the document.

The suit, the third filed in federal court by Miss Fugate, was originally lodged on Dec. 5, 1967 but no action has taken place since February of 1968.

Miss Fugate contends that her rights to legal counsel were denied by interrogators in 1958 and that she was induced by authorities to make statements by promises and threats.

Starkweather was executed in 1959. Authorities claimed he was responsible for 11 murders in two states.

NAACP Official Against Carswell

New York (UPI) — Dr. John A. Morsell, assistant executive director of the NAACP, said Thursday that President Nixon should withdraw the Supreme Court nomination of U.S. Appeals Judge G. Harrold Carswell because of a speech Carswell made in Georgia in 1948 in which he supported white supremacy.

Movable Barrier Flood Protection Urged In London

The New York Times

London — The government was urged by the Greater London Council to protect London from possible river flooding by financing a $120 million tide-control barrier across the Thames.

Although political controversy developed over the imminence of flood danger, with Conservatives more alarmed than Labor politicians, Anthony Greenwood, the Labor government's minister of housing and local government, said "London must be defended," and promised early action.

The nature of the movable barrier is to be determined after further design studies for rising and retractable gates.

Kennedy Loses Fight To Restrict Broad Applicability Of Crime Bill

Washington (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy lost a fight Thursday to narrow the list of offenses for which additional prison sentences of up to 30 years could be meted out under a bill aimed at organized crime.

The Massachusetts Democrat protested that the special sentencing provisions of the bill go beyond the field of organized crime and could be applied to persons convicted of civil rights or Selective Service law violations.

But Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., floor manager of the bill, said adoption of Kennedy's amendment would "leave a loophole from which nobody benefits but the criminals — the very persons we are after."

Restriction Sought

Kennedy's amendment, rejected by a 62-11 vote, would have restricted the covered offenses to those listed in another section of the bill providing new powers to root out racketeer infiltration of legitimate businesses and labor unions.

As Kennedy emphasized, this list includes such crimes as murder, bribery, extortion, counterfeiting, gambling, white slavery, arson, narcotics trafficking, mail fraud and obstruction of justice.

Kennedy sought to revise a section under which habitual or professional criminals or leaders of organized crime could, upon conviction for a crime, be given an additional sentence of up to 30 years.

Kennedy contended the special sentencing provision could be applied to someone like Dr. Benjamin Spock, who was convicted of conspiring to violate the Selective Service law — a conviction later reversed by the Supreme Court.

McClellan said he didn't know why Spock was being brought into the debate, declaring the intent of this part of the bill was to provide adequate sentences for persons who commit repeated felonies.

McClellan said he didn't see why violations of the Selective Service or civil rights laws shouldn't be counted along with other felonies.

The Senate rejected also a proposal to create an organized crime division within the Justice Department to spearhead the fight against underworld syndicates.

Proposal Defeated

The proposal offered by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., lost 45 to 29.

Tydings said creation of an organized crime division under the direction of an assistant attorney general would centralize responsibility in one official whose efforts would be diluted by other duties.

At present, there is an organized crime section in the Justice Department's criminal division, but Tydings said setting up a separate division would give "leadership, stature and continuity" to the fight against organized crime.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., said Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell opposed the amendment because it would splinter law enforcement and cause jurisdictional confusion within the Justice Department.

Vietnam Peace Talks Mark Full Year Of No Substance

Paris (AP) — The Vietnam peace talks rounded out a full year Thursday with a fruitless 51st session producing new Viet Cong charges of American "atrocities" but no hint of a break in the stalemate.

The four delegations, representing the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, first met in the former Hotel Majestic near the Arc de Triomphe on Jan. 18, 1969. Weekly meetings there ever since have produced no progress toward a settlement.

Viet Cong delegate Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh brought the only divergence from routine at Thursday's five-hour session. She read into the record details of an alleged massacre in South Vietnam in which, she said, more than 700 women, children and old men were killed in a group of villages of Quang Nam province on Nov. 11 and 12 last year.

She claimed that American, South Vietnamese and South Korean troops were involved under "direct American command and support" in the accelerated pacification program code-named Sea Tiger.

"This is one of the biggest and most barbarous mass slaughters perpetrated by the American, puppet and satellite troops in the first year of the Nixon administration," she declared.

Crime Unit To Seek Better Juvenile Detention Facilities

The Region II Crime Commission resolved Thursday to "pursue further" the improvement of juvenile detention facilities in Lancaster County. It also decided to visit the Westview Detention Home sometime during the next few weeks.

The commission also asked for a report at the next monthly meeting on what exactly it can do with federal funds in the field of police-community relations.

Charles Huff, the commission's executive secretary, said he contacted County Commissioner Kenneth Bourne and Juvenile Judge W. W. Nuernberger after the last meeting to register the commission's concern over a report that Westview was to be closed.

Will Stay Open

Huff said he learned later in a phone conversation with Nuernberger that the facility will remain in operation until a substitute can be found.

A possible location, said Huff, is a section of the present St. Elizabeth Health Center. The hospital will move to a new building soon.

But commission member Mrs. Robert Beggs, asserting that present facilities are inadequate, suggested the possibility of establishing a new detention facility.

Specifics Needed

After Commission Vice Chairman Cecil Parker suggested that 50% federal matching funds might be obtained, Mrs. Beggs recommended the commission "come up with a plan with specific amounts of money and present it to the county commissioners."

No commission action was taken on Mrs. Beggs' suggestion, other than a motion to pursue the commission's concern.

Mrs. Beggs said the Westview facility has no maximum security unit and that juveniles who require security must be kept in the city jail.

"Our juvenile cell is lousy," conceded Ben Goble, Lincoln police-community relations coordinator.

Dim View

Mrs. Beggs also took a dim view of the proposed location at St. Elizabeth.

"They'll do the same thing as at Westview," she said, "and put some bars on the windows and the kid in the cell and a cot on the floor."

Since juvenile delinquency and relations between the police and community were named as priorities at the December meeting of the commission, the Thursday session was also devoted mostly to those issues.

Several commission members expressed satisfaction with the community relations program of the police department directed by Goble and recommended that extra personnel to help in the program be hired through federal money allocated to the commission.

Regulations Cited

But Huff said regulations prevent using the action funds to pay the salaries of police officers except in certain circumstances.

It may be possible to pay consultant fees to officers who appear before civic or school groups on their off-duty hours, Huff said.

"I think we ought to find out what we can do with the money," said Mrs. Beggs, who presented a motion that Huff prepare a report on how the commission can use the federal funds.

Credit Pay

Also discussed was the proposal endorsed by the commission in December, on pay raises for police officers for college credits and military experience.

Passed by the city personnel board 3-1, the plan will next go before the City Council.

Chairman Tom Pansing said that "in order for it to have any hope for adoption by the council, I think we'll have to go up and give it our firm support."

The chief objection to the plan, Pansing said, is that it raises the question of pay increases for college hours held by city employes other than policemen.

Relationship Changed

But, said Pansing, the relationship between the police and any other employe has changed in recent years and "we are now asking for a new type of officer."

The plan calls for five per cent pay hikes for each 30 hours of approved credit completed by an officer, plus the equivalent of five hours of college credit for each year of military experience.

Asked what the police officers think of the proposal, Goble said "officers of the old school" don't seem particularly interested but the young officers support the plan.

"It's the young officers we have to think about," Goble said.

Nelson Plans To File For County Sheriff

Kenneth Nelson has announced that he will file Friday for the Republican nomination for Lancaster County sheriff.

Nelson, 35, was defeated as a candidate for the post in 1966.

A former deputy sheriff, Nelson is serving as a law enforcement officer for the State Department of Revenue.

Nelson said he sees a great need for improvement in the sheriff's office.

"I will talk directly with the people during this campaign because after 20 years a new voice and a new outlook are needed and I want this outlook to reflect the voice of the people," Nelson said.

Nelson is married and the father of three children.

U.S. Suit Seeks Condemnation Of Land In County

U.S. District Attorney Richard Dier filed suit in U.S. District Court Thursday seeking condemnation of 12.37 acres of land owned by Lancaster County.

The title to the six parcels of land would go to the U.S. government under the power of eminent domain to be used in connection with the Salt Creek and Tributaries Project, Site No. 17.

The parcels are all located along roadways east of 56th Street between South and Pioneers.

Ferris Appointed KSC Chaplain

Grand Island (AP) — The Most Rev. John Paschang, head of the Grand Island Roman Catholic Diocese, announced the appointment of the Rev. Carl Ferris to be chaplain of students at Kearney State College.

Father Ferris will replace the Rev. John Scott, who resigned and indicated he might leave the priesthood.

Father Ferris has been pastor of St. Joseph's Parish in Chappell and Sacred Heart Mission at Lodgepole.

Ag Dept. Official Sees Need For Changes In Container Law

By The Associated Press

A Nebraska law that requires specific markings on containers of "economic poisons" probably will need some alteration by the 1971 Legislature, an Agriculture Department spokesman said Thursday.

Bill Gilmore, attorney for the Agriculture Department, said LB757, endorsed by the 1969 Legislature, presented manufacturers considerable problems in the marking of their products.

"There are some of these things there is no answer to," Gilmore said.

Specifically, LB757 required that as of Jan. 1, 1970, containers of five gallon size or larger would bear the skull and crossbones with the height of at least 20% of the height of the container and the antidote for the poison also would be painted directly on the can, not printed on a gummed label, Gilmore said.

Manufacturers order their containers one or two years in advance, retailers keep stock on hand and the federal laws already require so much wording that compliance with the Nebraska law is most difficult, Gilmore said.

A. T. Talcott of Midland, Mich., appearing for the Dow Chemical Co., said such poisons often are warehoused at a central location for shipment into various states.

Enough state laws could be passed that it would be impossible to design one container for shipment into all states, he said.

Federal legislation would be better because of interstate commerce, Gilmore said.

His comments came after a public hearing Thursday called in accordance with the original law for comments on the director's determination of economic poisons that are "highly toxic" to man and animal.

An attempt had been made to list the various products that would require the special labeling but new products are released so often that keeping the list current would be a major problem, Gilmore said.

The director's proposed testing procedures drew little comment.

The procedures included tests on animals measuring toxicity when taken orally, by inhalation or by skin absorption.

One category also provided for declaration of "toxicity based on human experience."

Data available on human experience that would indicate a toxicity greater than that determined from the tests on animals could result in an economic poison being declared highly toxic to man for the purposes of the act, the guidelines said.

LB757 was passed as an amendment to the economic poisons and devices law of 1961.

The original law defined economic poisons as any substance used for "preventing, destroying, repelling or mitigating any insects, rodents, nematodes, fungi, weeds or other forms of plant or animal life, or viruses," except those viruses carried by man or animals.

The category also could include any substance intended for use as a "plant regulator, defoliant or desictant."

Gilmore said he would study a suggestion from Talcott that the measure, inasmuch as it refers to liquid measures, applies only to liquid economic poisons.

"These containers are the only type and size that offer any practical value as containers after the original product has been removed, even though this is not the intent of the manufacturer," Talcott said.

Gilmore said he thought only the Legislature could make such a distinction in the law.

Violation of the law is a misdemeanor but the director of agriculture would be allowed to confiscate containers not properly marked, Gilmore said.

Also attending the hearing were James E. Hicks, Des Moines, representing Chevron Chemical Co., and Robert Stoudt of Lincoln, representing Harris Laboratories.

Students Creating New Look For Snack Bar At Wesleyan

Three students at Nebraska Wesleyan University are creating a new look and atmosphere for part of the snack bar area at the Campus Center.

Leslie Bruning of Columbus and Bob Lane and Bill Steffens, both of Kearney, have been working the past three weeks on creating a coffee house atmosphere with old cable spools and plywood.

"Members of the student senate and other individual students expressed interest in redecorating the area that used to be a game room," according to Dr. Al Winseman, dean of men. "They wanted a place that would be conducive to conversation and relaxation."

Bruning, who won the design competition for the sculpture in the County-City Building in Lincoln, drew the blueprints for the redecoration.

The design consists of using various heights of old cable spools and attaching them with plywood to form seats and tables. One section of the area will be devoted to a stage for small groups and individuals to perform.

"The campus center advisory council will establish procedures and plan activities for the area," Dr. Winseman said.

Project cost is expected to be less than $600.

Coed Is Bride At Afternoon Wedding

The wedding of Miss Barbara Ann Fager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fager, and Charles W. Satchell, son of Mrs. Chester W. Satchell of Bayard, and the late Mr. Satchell, took place on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 17, at St. Paul Methodist Church. The 4 o'clock candlelight ceremony was solemnized by the bride's grandfather, Dr. John W. Ekwall before a background of white chrysanthemums and gold tapers. On either side of the floral arrangement were bronze Temple candles which were brought from Thailand for the wedding. Houghton Furr played the wedding music and Miss Janice Stubblefield was the vocal soloist.

The attendants, all sisters of the bride, included Mrs. James H. Olson of Karval, Colo., the matron of honor; Mrs. Keith K. Bolsen, bridesmatron, and Miss Jane Fager, the bridesmaid. Their alike, floor-length frocks were of gold-toned velvet and each carried a plaque bouquet fashioned with a large white chrysanthemum arranged against a background of gold and white.

James J. Satchell of Bayard served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Allen Williams of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Gordon Hrnicek, Terence Anderson, both of Bayard, and Michael Mendon of Ralston.

Chantilly lace and satin fashioned the gown chosen by the bride. The long-sleeved, fitted bodice of lace was designed with a scalloped sabrina neckline, and the lace was repeated to form redingote panels over the A-line silhouette skirt of satin. A mantilla veil, bordered with lace, was held to the head with an open crown and extended into an aisle-wide cotillion length train, she carried a Bible ornamented with a cluster of gold and white orchids and stephanotis.

After a short honeymoon trip Mr. Satchell and his bride returned to Lincoln where they are residing at 4010 So. 17th St.

The bride is a graduate of schools in Ethiopia and the Philippines and upon her return to Lincoln was graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce. She then spent a year in Bangkok, Thailand where she was a secretary in the Economics section at the American Embassy. She now is attending the University of Nebraska. Mr. Satchell, the great-great-great nephew of the late Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, will be graduated in June from the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Brides Book

A very popular January bride-elect who has been honored at numerous pre-nuptial courtesies during recent weeks is Miss Lynda Heiselman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Therold Heiselman, whose marriage to Roger E. Bissell will be an event of Saturday afternoon, Jan. 24.

On Saturday, Jan. 17, Miss Heiselman was presented with a miscellaneous shower at a party which took place at the home of Mrs. Linda Shafer in Cumberland, Iowa. Assistant hostesses at the party, which was attended by friends of the bridegroom-elect, were Mrs. Norma Christensen, and Mrs. Vera Christensen, also of Cumberland.

Mrs. Lloyd Mortensen, Mrs. George Watson and Mrs. Gary Swetland were hostesses at a courtesy which took place on Friday, Jan. 16, at the Youth Center of the Green Chapel Christian and Missionary Alliance. During the informal get-together, guests presented the soon-to-be bride with a pantry and miscellaneous shower.

On Tuesday, Jan. 13, Mrs. Dale Smith was hostess at her home at a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Heiselman.

Guests at the party which took place on Friday, Jan. 9, in honor of Miss Heiselman presented her with a personal and linen shower. The festivities took place at the home of Miss Gayle Dawson.

Miss Sharon Stehlik and Mrs. Loren Garrelts were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower when they entertained on Saturday, Dec. 13, at the home of Miss Stehlik.

The marriage of Miss Heiselman and Mr. Bissell will take place at a 3 o'clock ceremony to be solemnized at the United Methodist Chapel on the University of Nebraska campus. The bride-elect has named Miss Colleeen Lovett of Woodland Hills, Calif., as her honor attendant, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Sharon Stehlik, and Miss Julie Ann Bissell of Cumberland, Iowa.

Doug Rasmussen of Iowa City, Iowa, will serve Mr. Bissell as best man; and the groomsmen will be Dennis Edwall and Tom Burnham, both of Ames, Iowa. Fred W. Briggs and Ray Schellenburg of Anita, Iowa will seat the guests.

The flower girl and ring bearer will be Miss Sherry Douglass and Lyle Schellenburg of Anita, Iowa will seat the guests.

Mr. Bissell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon K. Bissell of Cumberland, Iowa, is a graduate of Iowa State University at Ames and is presently doing graduate work at the University of Iowa at Iowa City.

Talk

Your dictionary might tell you that imagination is a mental conception — or the ability to create decorative imagery — and so on and such.

We know exactly what imagination is. It is living through weeks of frigid weather and coming up with thoughts of moonlight and roses.

The members of the committee planning the Saturday Nite Club dinner dance, to be held on Saturday evening at Hotel Cornhusker, have imagination. The theme of the party is "Moonlight and Roses."

That committee, by the way, includes Mr. and Mrs. Max Speidell, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lind, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mattson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Barney Schrepf, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. James Preston.

* * *

Perhaps it wasn't quite so much imagination as it was psychology that brought the Lincoln Symphony Guild membership up from 399 members to 402 members.

This happened at a Guild meeting a couple of days ago when the Guild president, Mrs. Irwin Chesen, announced that the organization had 399 members as of that moment and she wondered who would like the honor of becoming the 400th member.

There were guests present, and the psychology worked like a charm. Mrs. W. G. Fulton was presented with a membership as a birthday gift from her daughter; Mrs. Noah Moore, Jr., also received a membership as a gift and Mrs. George P. Hanna, Jr., became a member all on her own.

Italian Designer Shows Quiet Hues

Brenda Rotzoll, UPI's fashion writer, is back this morning with more news of the spring and summer fashion week in Rome. Italy's top bracket designers were on hand with their showings, and the story this morning tells of the closing show, with a brief summary of which designer showed what during the week.

Rome — Patrick De Barentzen said the last and longest word on hemlines Wednesday dropping skirts to the ankle in the concluding show of the Italian summer fashion week.

His "vertical line" came in two versions, straight and with slightly flared skirt. Restraint was the key word.

Colors were quiet — black, dark brown, white and what he described as translucent face powder pink. The pale shade like translucent cosmetics, picked up color from the tint of the model's skin.

Prints were black and brown, and black, brown and white, in an abstract feather pattern which borrowed shape but not flamboyance from the peacock's tail.

He liked long, slim sleeves and natural waists with small self-belts or half-inch set-in waistbands dipping to a shallow V in front.

The designer of French and Danish descent also kept many tunic and trouser suits, or tunics or long coats over slim jumpsuits.

A typical day dress was high-necked, sleeveless, with a small easy belt and a straight skirt to the ankle, in dark brown. It was topped by a perfectly straight slim brown coat which was lined in the white and brown peacock feather print. A matching silk scarf dropped in a U around the neck and down the back to the knees.

NREA Conference Program

Ladies accompanying their husbands to the 34th annual meeting of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association (NREA) conference, which began yesterday and will conclude today, have enjoyed attending the sessions of a special women's program presented at the Hotel Cornhusker.

Opening the two-day program was Mrs. Irwin Chesen, the fashion coordinator for a local store, who presented a style show which emphasized the use of accessories.

Also included on the agenda has been a talk on "Task Force of Rural Electric Women" presented by Miss Rebekah Rivers of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Clema serves as Nebraska's representative on the national Task Force Committee.

Demonstrating a Corning Counterange will be Mrs. Bernice Kruger and Mrs. Clarence Clover, home economists for the Lincoln Electric System.

Mrs. Lucille A. Clema, administrative assistant of NREA and Mrs. Clarence Kraft of Alliance are co-chairmen of the program; and Mrs. Herbert Johnson of Edgar is alternate chairman.

Sorority To Meet

The members of Nebraska Alpha Chapter, Delta Theta Chi sorority will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. D. W. Baird, 2500 So. 7th St., No. 2 Warwick. A program, "The Life and Paintings of John Steuart Curry," will be presented by Mrs. Carolyn B. Yeakley.

MISS SHARI WIEMANN

Of interest to Lincoln this morning is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Shari Wiemann, of San Francisco, Calif., daughter of Herbert Wiemann of Lincoln, and the late Mrs. Wiemann, to Edward Emling, also of San Francisco and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emling of Detroit, Mich.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, April 18.

Miss Wiemann is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. She now is careering in San Francisco.

Mr. Emling was graduated from Michigan State University.

Annual CFG Dinner, Elections, Are Held

The Lincoln Council of Camp Fire Girls held its annual awards dinner and meeting Wednesday evening at the Lincoln Center. Following the dinner and a number of skits, awards were presented and election of new officers was held.

The highest award for an adult in the Camp Fire Girls program, the Luther Halsey Gulick Award, was presented to Dean C. McMurtry, Jr., who has served as chairman of the Camping Committee. Mr. McMurtry, who has devoted a great deal of time to Camp Kiwanis at Milford, also has served on the Midwestern Regional Committee of Camp Fire Girls, and has been a member of the National Council, the national governing body of the organization.

Awards for five years of group leadership were presented to Mrs. Frank Dougherty and Mrs. Robert Robertus; and Mrs. Carl Erickson received her ten-year pin. Mrs. Richard Pitsch of Seward, Mrs. Roger Rhodes, Mrs. Marvin Stewart, Mrs. Charles McElfresh and Mrs. Norman Krivosh received recognition for administrative work in the Council; and the Ernest Thompson Seton Award for five years of administrative service was presented by Mrs. Richard E. Taylor.

A special certificate of appreciation was presented to the Lincoln Fire Department for its cooperation in helping to start the Camp Fire project "Operation Edith" a program of emergency exit drills in the home.

Miss Coralee Failor was presented as the top sales girl in the recent candy drive; and the fifth-grade Camp Fire Girls group at Hartley school, under the leadership of Mrs. Lois Mosher, recorded the most sales of any one group. Miss Shelly Wikoff was the top Blue Bird sales girl.

Norman Krivosha was elected president of the Lincoln Council, and new members of the board of directors are Mrs. David Beckett, Mrs. Carl Hartman, Mrs. Dwight Kapke, Miss Leora McGrew, Mrs. Robert Portz, Mrs. Elmer Scheele, James Owen and Mrs. R. G. Walters. Miss Mary Martin and Miss Christine Feldt, representatives of the Horizon Club high school Camp Fire Girls program, were also selected to serve on the board.

Meeting

The February meeting of the Engineering Student Wives will take place on Monday evening, Feb. 9, in room 206, Richards Hall on the University of Nebraska campus. The meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and the program will feature a demonstration on make-up to be presented by a representative of Merle Norman cosmetics.

Courtesy

Miss Diana Goeschel, whose Febr. 14 marriage to Thomas A. Bolton is coming up on the social calendar, is the center of bridal festivities this week.

Last Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, Miss Goeschel was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous bridal shower given by Mrs. Al Suhr, Mrs. Robert Loos, and Mrs. Steve Goeschel at the First Federal Party Room.

January is the colds season, as well as a cold one. And, with sniffling and sneezing the order of the day, you might want to take heed of a few household remedies, circa 1909. The recommendations by J. C. Grice in his "Common Counsel", include catnip tea before retiring — which is good not only for colds, but for headaches as well. If your problem is a chest cold, Mr. Grice suggests an onion poultice, but if your cold has made you hoarse, make a horseradish root-and-sugar syrup — a tablespoon or two, three times a day should take care of the problem. Ginger tea will relieve a cold as well, or you might pour boiling water over pennyroyal for another bedtime drink.

We will not guarantee the usefulness of any or all of Mr. Grice's "cold remedies", but we are willing to bet that if you take all of that advice, something is bound to happen — whether or not it will cure your cold is another question.

Fortunately, not everyone in suburbia has colds to take care of — some, like Mrs. George P. Hanna Jr., are too busy with hostess duties to bother about anything else.

Mrs. Hanna was hostess at her Wedgewood Manor home on Saturday, Jan. 17, at a luncheon which honored bride-to-be Miss Cindy Giles. Miss Giles, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Giles, graduated on Thursday, Jan. 22, from Kearney State College, and will become the bride of Malcolm Smith in a Saturday, Feb. 14, ceremony in Ainsworth.

During the afternoon, the 17 guests — high school friends of Miss Giles who are now attending the University of Nebraska and Nebraska Wesleyan University — presented her with a kitchen gadget shower.

Lincoln Heights is minus four residents, as of Monday, Jan. 19. That is the day that Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shingle, Lynda, and John, packed up the car and headed west. Their destination is Olympia, Wash., but between Lincoln and Olympia there will be about three weeks and a number of stops.

The first part of the journey will end in Globe, Ariz., where Mr. and Mrs. Shingle and family will be the guests of Mrs. Shingle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Wilson. They will then travel through California, with frequent stops to visit friends and relatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Shingle, who spent a number of years in that state.

The next stop will be in Corvallis, Ore., where the travelers will spend a few days with Mr. Shingle's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Shingle and family. And finally — several thousand miles and several weeks later — the journey will end in Olympia, where a new home awaits the former Lincoln residents.

Things are getting back to normal at 8115 Sanborne Dr. in Wedgewood Manor — but normal will never be the same. There is a newcomer to the family circle in the person of Miss Camille Joan Watson, who made her debut at Bryan Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, Dec. 17, and shortly after went home to join the Meadow Lane family of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Watson — a family which includes two other young ladies — Angela, 7, and Susan, 4.

"Camie" has a grandmother, Mrs. Harley Tanner, who makes her home in Gering. Mrs. Tanner came to Lincoln to help keep the family organized while Mrs. Watson was in the hospital.

Abby: the beginning of the end

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is not unique although I've never seen it in your column. After 10 years of marriage and two children, I still love my husband very much and think we have a good marriage.

He says he loves me, too, and is very happy, but he also says that "variety is the spice of life," and he's pushing to get me to go along with the "husband-wife swapping" idea. Apparently this type of thing has become more widespread.

I suppose I should be grateful that he doesn't just go ahead and find somebody. At least he keeps asking me if I'll go along with it so he won't exactly be cheating on me.

In spite of my repeated negative reactions, he persists on using the old argument that men need variety more than women. What do you think, Abby? I could use some support.

LOVES HIM

DEAR LOVES: When married couples agree that "variety is the spice of life," and then proceed to spice up their lives with that kind of "variety," it is the beginning of the end. Men don't "need" variety any more than women. What all civilized people need is not "variety," its decency and self-control. Tell him that when you promised to forsake all others, you meant it. And nothing has changed.

DEAR ABBY: I have no problem at the moment, but I do have a little story which I think will amuse you.

Have you ever heard "DEAR ABBY" used as an expletive? Well, I have. It was like this: In a local laundromat, a very nice appearing little white-haired lady at the washer next to me dropped some clean clothes on the floor. "Oh, brother!" she muttered, under her breath as she retrieved them. But when she dropped them again a few minutes later, she really expressed herself. "DEAR ABBY!" she signed.

NO PROBLEMS IN DE LAND, FLORIDA

DEAR NO: Thanks. I've heard more graphic expletives.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Questions, Answers

Q. I would appreciate it very much if you would give me exercises to make my nose straighter. I have heard of plastic surgery. I have never mentioned it to my parents. They would laugh because my defect is very small and surgery is expensive.

A. I am glad you have a little defect. You probably have a little nose. Do not make the mistake of wishing for regular perfection in beauty. Some of the loveliest ladies are those who have slight irregularities. This gives one individuality and adds verve to a face.

Do not think about plastic surgery. The only way your problem could injure your attractiveness would be if you should dwell on it and become self-conscious about it.

Q. What one exercise would you give for strengthening the abdominal muscles. It will have to be a mild one because my muscles are weak.

A. Do this: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms overhead resting on the floor and your legs straight (1). Bend both knees up close to the adomen and clasp the knees with the hands (2). Stretch out, returning the legs and the arms to starting position (3). If you cannot do this, then slide the legs back to place until your muscles become stronger.

Q. I would like to become an actress and I have been told that the first step is to go to a modeling school.

A. Actually I think the first step in becoming an actress would be to have talent. No doubt you feel that you do, and you may have. A good modeling school would be beneficial in teaching you how to stand and walk and sit and so forth. It would be good training anyway. After that would come a school of drama.

Bridge: test your play

B. Jay Becker

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the K-Q of clubs, which you duck, and then the jack — on which South shows out. How would you play the hand?

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ K J 10 5♥ A K 8♦ A Q♣ A 9 4 2 | |
| ♠ Q 8 2♥ Q 6 5 4♦ J 7 4 3♣ 8 6 | NW ES | |
| | | |

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Hearts and North leads the five of hearts. You win South's nine and return a high heart. North takes the ace and returns the eight, which you win, South having discarded two diamonds. How would you play the hand?

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ K 10♥ K Q J 10 4 3♦ K 6♣ J 8 6 | |
| ♠ J 7 5♥ 7 6 2♦ A 4♣ A K 10 9 3 | NW ES | |

1. It is clear that if North has the ace of spades you cannot make the contract, so you must assume that South has the ace.

However, it would be wrong to lead a spade at this point because South would win and probably return a diamond. You would then be faced with the critical question of whether to take a diamond finesse or rely on a 3-3 heart break to make the contract —and you would have no way of knowing which to do.

You can avoid this dilemma by first cashing the A-K-Q of hearts. If it turns out that the suit is divided 3-3, you cash the fourth heart and then force out the ace of spades to assure nine tricks.

If it develops that the hearts are divided 4-2, you will then have to attempt a diamond finesse to make the contract. By testing the hearts before attacking spades, you give yourself two chances to bring home the contract instead of one.

2. There is a possibility of winning the rest of the tricks by taking a club finesse, but there is also the possibility of going down by doing this. This could occur if South got in with the queen of clubs and returned a low sapde.

You can guarantee the contract against any accident by entering dummy with a diamond and leading a low spade yourself. Assume South follows low and you lose the ten to the queen.

This is no great hardship because, whatever North returns, you win and force out the ace of spades. This makes dummy's jack a trick on which you discard a club. The most you can lose with this method of play is a heart and two spades.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A rainy night on San Francisco Bay. The ships' lights carry a wreath of rain reflection. The gaudy neons of the topless-bottomless bounce off wet Broadway. (The old Barbary Coast: "God pity the sailors on a night like this!")

So off to Charles gilt palace of dressed and undressed lamb chops. To audition the pastry-shelled chop. And lift a glass to days gone by. For it was here among the gold walls and ornate mirrors that bare bottoms began.

☆ ☆ ☆

This was the Music Box. And when I was chopping out wooden adjectives for the dailies, Sally Rand danced here.

She danced bare — or so she said — behind a fan. When the lights turned blue, she dropped the fan. Strong men clutched their collars and hoarsely ordered more champagne. (That was the name of the game, Max.)

Later Sally danced behind a bubble. About as opaque as a bathroom window.

She said: "The so-and-so customers are always flipping cigarettes at it. I'm all blistered on the feet."

☆ ☆ ☆

The place has now been made into a restaurant by Monsieur Charles. It is a place you say "the tourist rarely goes to."

For the simple reason the tourist can't find it.

It has no telephone numer. They will not take reservations. It has no doorman, no sign. I don't think it has a formal name.

They serve elegant lamb. Show an imposing wine list. French waiters. Charles wore a beard — a very French beard — before beards were in. It's that kind of place.

☆ ☆ ☆

Naturally in this modest city Sally was busted by the police. I covered several of her trials.

Can't remember how she came out. But it was lively stuff. Yards of publicity.

She was defended by J. W. "Jake the Master" Erlich. A soaring legal eagle on the bare brisket circuit then.

Jake specialized in swooning female clients.

They fainted when the verdict came in. Guilty or no.

Then they came over to the press room and fainted for the photographers. Jake fielded them as they fell. Smiling full-faced into the camera.

"One more, Jake," cried the photographers.

"OK," said Jake. "Faint, honey." Click

Charles scraped the paint off and restored the Music Box to the golden glory of the nights when Sally stepped on the cigarette butts.

Its baroque to bring you to reminiscent tears. Great curlicue plastered ceilings. Cherubs and cupids hanging from the walls. Greek statues in wall niches. Mirrors set in frames of gilt.

On the ceiling a filmy doll is painted against filmy blue water.

A mezzanine floor of gilded boxes hangs over the main floor.

Can't recall the charges against Sally. Something like indecent exposure I imagine.

Anyway, it was nothing to the exposure in the top-less-bottomless — all bare shows today. It was shocking then. The Johnny Nabs arrested her. Jake got her off. And she fainted.

Gay days in The City That Knows How.

Sally brought in other peelers. Faith Bacon. Margie Hart — I think she was the one who worked with trained pigeons. Fluttering their wings at strategic points of exposure. (The customers cheered and threw cracked corn on stage.)

Or maybe she was the one who trained a deer to eat off a costume of fig laves. Selecting only unessential leaves.

So to brandy and coffee among gilded memory. And through the rainy night home filled with sighs.

Bids To Be Opened On Highway Projects

By Associated Press

Bids on an estimated $12.9 million in highway work will be opened by the State Department of Roads Feb. 19, it was announced Thursday.

Included in the Interstate projects is completion of 1.9 miles of work on Interstate 680 in Omaha between 72nd Street and the US73 interchange and 12.3 miles of pavement on Interstate 80 between the Bushnell and Kimball interchanges.

One project for which bids were requested at the Nov. 13, 1969, letting was listed for bids again. The work involved gravel surfacing of a detour on Nebraska 58 between Loup City and Rockville.

The Roads Department said the one bid received in November was rejected and plans for the work have not been changed.

NU To Confer 850 Degrees, Certificates

A record of 850 degrees and certificates will be conferred at the University of Nebraska's Mid-Year Commencement Saturday, Jan. 31, at Pershing Auditorium.

This is the largest mid-year graduating class in the history of the institution, more than 100 above the previous mark set in 1969.

Interim Chancellor Merk Hobson will confer degrees. Dr. Joseph Soshnik, president of the Lincoln campuses and outstate activities, will preside. Dr. C. Peter Magrath, dean of faculties, will be master of ceremonies.

The Rev. Wesley P. Hustad, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Lincoln, will give the invocation and benediction. John Brandstetter, a sophomore from Wayne, will sing the National Anthem.

The commencement exercises, at 10 a.m., are open to the public.

NU Officials Discuss Compact With South Dakota For Medical And Dental Students

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The possibility of a compact for the education of South Dakota's medical and dental students at the University of Nebraska was discussed Thursday by officials of the two states meeting in Lincoln.

Dr. Richard Gibb, South Dakota commissioner of higher education, said his state has a shortage of doctors and dentists but the current Legislature has indicated willingness to appropriate funds toward improving the situation.

"It may be better to take the dollars we're pumping into our two-year medical school and buy a four-year program in another state," he said. "Another possibility is a four-year regional school operated jointly with North Dakota or another state."

The South Dakota delegation said its dental students now must secure their education in other states, and only five of 28 candidates could be placed in out-of-state schools last fall.

Dr. Richard Bradley, dean of the NU dental school, said 8 to 10 South Dakota dental students are now at NU, but the college is willing to explore a contractual arrangement for admission of 10 to 15 students annually based on the state's actual costs plus tuition.

Officials at the meeting agreed any proposed compact should not jeopardize dental and medical educational opportunities for Nebraska students and South Dakota would pay "the fair share" of educational costs for its students.

NU officials agreed to develop a compact proposal for South Dakota medical and dental students as to cost and numbers that the NU Board of Regents could offer to South Dakota after its mid-February meeting.

Loyola University at Chicago has ooffered to take 10 South Dakota students at $3,000 per year plus tuition, but the South Dakota delegation indicated the state might retain a greater number of graduating dentists if they were educated at Nebraska or another mid-western school.

Dr. Cecil Wittson, president of the university medical college at Omaha, said rapid medical curriculum changes in the past three years is beginning make more difficult the admission of a two-year medical student into a four-year program.

However, he suggested any compact arrangement could mesh the South Dakota two-year program with Nebraska's four-year school.

Dr. Robert Hayes of Vermillion, coordinator of the Nebraska-South Dakota Regional Medical Program, said the "compact idea" for medical education is used by other states.

He suggested a compact for medical education by South Dakota with Nebraska is a logical move for his state because of the growing cooperation between the two states through the regional medical program.

Lutz Secretary Of 1st Assembly Of God Church

William Lutz has been elected secretary of the First Assembly of God Church.

E. J. Turnwall was elected treasurer and Fred Smith was chosen as a deacon.

New trustees are Robert Bundy, Jack Hegedus and Dwight Wright.

Deaconesses elected were Lois Everett, Janet Smith and Lillian Kess.

Senators Poked For Failure To Vote For Health, Ed Bill

Dr. Wallace Peterson, economist and educator, said Thursday "it is regrettable" that Nebraska's Republican senators failed to support the $19.7 billion appropriation measure for health and education spending in fiscal 1970.

Chairman of the University of Nebraska Department of Economics, Dr. Peterson has been urged by some fellow Democrats to seek the Nebraska U.S. senatorial nomination this year.

The appropriation measure he referred to passed the Senate 74-17 despite the threat of a presidential veto.

"Opposition to the measure was based upon the fact that that bill contained more than a billion dollars above what was requested by the administration, which, it is alleged, would be inflationary," Dr. Peterson's statement said.

"At best, this is a dubious position. The $1.26 billion extra contained in the senate-passed measure will approximate about one-tenth of one per cent of the gross national product. . ."

He acknowledged that inflation "is truly one of our most critical domestic problems." But he said a veto of the bill in question "may in a longer run sense contribute to inflationary pressures if it means a reduction in medical research, a cutback in funds for vocational training and other educational activities which contribute to making people and the economy more productive."

The real source of the current inflation is military expenditures, he said.

Teacher Wins Award For Report On Film Produced By Kindergarten

An Eastridge School kindergarten class produced its own film on the Apollo 8 moon flight last year, according to a story appearing in the February issue of Instructor magazine.

The story, written by Mrs. Winifred M. Thoren, a media specialist at May Morley School, won the Lincolnite a third place award in competition of reports on changes in today's education.

The five-year-olds in Mrs. Mary O'Brien's class had prepared the film as a part of a unit on aerospace, studied immediately after the Apollo 8 flight that sent man around the moon for the first time.

The children gathered still photographs, drew some pictures of their own to fill in the gaps, printed titles and subtitles and filmed the flight with an 8 mm. camera. The 3½-minute film even included animation of a rocket being launched.

Copies of the film were sent to the Apollo 8 astronauts and the President of the United States.

Job Case Settled By Hotel, Woman

A cash settlement has been reached in a sex discrimination case filed by a Lincoln woman against the Raddison Cornhusker Hotel, the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission said Thursday.

Reid Devoe, executive director of the commission, said the agreement was reached before the commission was able to schedule the dispute for a hearing.

Mrs. Joy Sullivan had accused the hotel of job discrimination on the basis of sex.

Omahan Named To Barber Unit

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann announced Thursday the appointment of Gary K. Anderson of Omaha to the State Board of Barber Examiners for a two-year term.

Anderson, a practicing barber, succeeds Fred Lanning of Omaha, whose term has expired.

Udall To Be Main Speaker At NU Conference May 8

Former U.S. Secretary of the Interior, Stewart Udall, will be the main speaker at the University of Nebraska's annual Montgomery Conference May 8.

He will give the keynote address on science and public policy in relation to environmental quality, according to Dr. James Drew, professor of agronomy and chairman of the Montgomery conference committee.

The program will begin at 2 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

Udall is currently serving as chairman of the board of the Overview Group in Washington, D.C., an international consulting firm in the area of environmental programs.

Following the address, there will be a panel discussion on the topic featuring representatives of government, business, industry, education, and natural resource groups.

Dr. Drew stressed that the conference will be open to all individuals — students, faculty,

STEWART UDALL
Former Secretary

and the general public — who have an interest in environmental quality.

The Montgomery lecture-conferences were estabished at the university in 1945 under an endowment provided by the estate of the late Laura Claire Montgomery. Purpose of the program is to bring outstanding and interesting persons to the campus to speak on appropriate topics of contemporary civilization.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

Showmanship is what counts today, in cooking, in personal relationship, in almost all areas. Leo continues in the spotlight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Featured is change, travel, variety. You purchase or receive gifts. Festive occasion is highlighted. Strive to beautify surroundings. Give and you also will receive affection.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stick to basic issues. Fine to use imagination. But don't let mind wander aimlessly. Keep goal in sight. Accent on property, improvement, acquisition of needed utensils.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Short journeys, much activity indicated. Get ideas on paper. Day better for quick actions than for long-range projects. Older individual may be quarrelsome. Display sense of humor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Positive gain indicated. You get recognition for past efforts. One who was far away moves closer to your personal orbit. Can be a most gratifying day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cycle is high; you can take initiative. Display talents — utilize showmanship. Make new contacts. Romance is featured and excitement of self-discovery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work behind the scenes. Co-operate in charity projects. Stand tall and adhere to principles. One who has been "missing" makes presence felt.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friendship, mutual admiration featured. Most pleasant if you open your heart to joy. Don't be too concerned with details. Accent the creative pleasures — give of yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov. 21): You accomplish, gain prestige, receive meaningful compliments. You could also be in line for promotion. Be ready for added responsibility.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect today coincides with publishing, writing, advertising activities. Let others know what you expect — and can offer. Look to future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Finances, estates, probate questions could come to fore. Dig deep; refuse superficial answers. Get at the truth. Unorthodox procedures are most likely to succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lie low. Permit others, including mate, partner, to take initiative. Patience and waiting game are your allies. Spotlight on legal commitments. Get expert advice. And follow it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take no chances with reckless persons at wheel. Key is moderation. You can have fun without going to extremes. Money expended to improve home, property is well spent.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vital, attractive to opposite sex. Would make fine reporter — you love facts and can interpret and express them in delightful manner. Important changes — and travel — are on horizon.

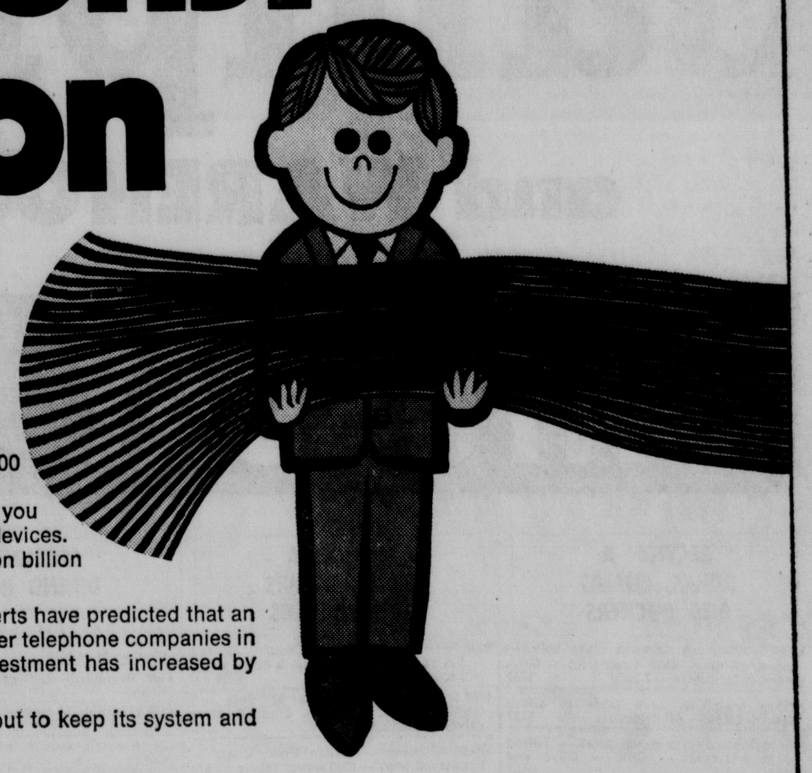
Have we got connections! Ten million billion!!!



That's the number of different telephone connections—give or take a few million—that can be made in the United States today.

Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company alone has more than 207,000 telephones in service (an increase of 45 per cent over the last decade). Then, through LT&T's interconnections with other telephone companies, you can reach at will more than 100 million other telephones or telephone devices. And some mathematician has figured out that this sets up the ten million billion possible different connections.

As astounding as this figure may seem, it's "only the beginning". Experts have predicted that an "information explosion" will more than double the job of LT&T and other telephone companies in the next ten years. In the past ten years, LT&T "Plant-in-service" investment has increased by over $50 million.

LT&T pledges its energies and resources not just to stay up to date, but to keep its system and service ahead of the times.

Old Men, Beware

George Abel, George Knight, Harry Hopp, Ed Schwartzkopf and other members of that 1940 Nebraska football team that played Stanford in the 1941 Rose Bowl, Beware.

The day may come when you'll be asked to shed a few of those extra pounds, doff a toupee and put on the pads for a clash with the 1963 Nebraska team to determine which was the best Nebraska team of all-time.

Of course, because of your age, the game will be played in two-play sequences with an hour rest period in between. You'll have to take a month off from your jobs to take part in the filming.

Then, of course, you'll have to wait several more months to find out whether you won, lost or tied when Murray Woroner, the mad computer genius from Miami, decides to release the films.

Don't laugh, it could happen in the crazy science-fiction world that Woroner is creating in sports these days.

And after you lose those pounds and don the toupees, you'll resemble your 1940 selves as closely as Rocky Marciano of 1969 resembled Rocky Marciano of the early 1950's when he was ruling the boxing world.

Let's Leave 'Em Alone

Two sports fans can't even sit down to coffee or some stronger beverage and agree on who's the best football team of 1969 or the best boxer of 1969.

But Woroner, seeing the financial rewards ahead because of sports fans' craving to determine who's best, has put his computers to work trying to decide who's the best of all-time, not just of 1963 or 1969.

His computerized radio affairs for the all-time middleweight championship, the all-time heavyweight championship and the horse of all-time were farcical enough.

But he went one step farther into the world of science-fiction this week when he released his filmed version of the computerized super fight between Rocky Marciano and Cassius Clay.

A fellow's undefeated record isn't even safe any more when he retires or even dies. Clay was an undefeated heavyweight champion when he was stripped of his title, but he has a two-bout losing streak going at present.

And both losses have been to dead men — to James Jeffries in the computerized radio tourney and to Marciano Tuesday night in the closed circuit TV version.

Where Was Louis?

One of the first questions involving the farcical staging was where was Joe Louis?

Surely the Bronx Bomber should have been given some consideration as a contender. But he probably couldn't get into a physical condition that would suit the computer.

So, all you fat 1940 team members, start getting in shape, or Murray will replace you with the 1957 team that was 1-9.

Please, Murray, let's save the computers for finding dates for lonely people, figuring income taxes and catching people who haven't paid their parking tickets.

'Little Round Medals Mean More Than Money'

... BILL TOOMEY, ALMOST OVERLOOKED BY AAU, PUTS PRINCIPLES ABOVE CASH

©The New York Times
By ARTHUR DALEY

New York — The Ballots had been printed and the envelopes had been addressed. All was in readiness last month — or so it seemed — to poll the tribunal of 1,000 sportsmen in the annual voting for the Sullivan Award, highest honor for an amateur performer in this country. The list of candidates had been drawn up by the Amateur Athletic Union some time previously and the goof therein was monumental.

In some inexplicable fashion the most deserving candidate of all had been overlooked and omitted from the slate. He is Bill Toomey, the Olympic decathlon champion of 1968 and the new holder of the world record for the all-around. When this slip was discovered, low rumbles of discontent swelled to an angry roar. So the embarrassed A.A.U. committeemen rubbed the egg from their chins and corrected the booboo by adding Toomey to the list in the reprinted ballot.

Toomey should win, mainly because he's the class operative of the field. Few if any of the others can match his total dedication and idealism. His high principles perfectly fit the terms of the Sullivan Award which annually goes to an athlete adjudged to have "by performance and example done most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship and amateur athletics."

Not long ago the official bulletin of the United States Olympic committee reported part of a conversation Toomey had with Frank Dolson, his Philadelphia biographer. It almost says it all:

"Maybe if I had put the same effort into being a football or baseball player, I would have done as well as some of the pros who make the big salaries. But I did what I wanted to do. It gave me a sense of accomplishment.

"Some guys win 31 games or throw touchdown passes and laugh all the way to the bank. Other guys get a little round medal. To me, what's important is what the little round medal stands for. It seems to me we've lost the concept of doing something simply because it's worth while in itself. We've become so economically oriented that we've lost sight of the real values in life.

"When I become a parent, I'll expose my children to every aspect of sports life. But I won't push too hard. I won't keep reminding them that their father won the decathlon in Mexico City. But they're going to realize that physical activity is an integral part of good living — that having a sound body is not a game that ends when you don't make the high school football team any more than it ends when you win a gold medal in the Olympic Games."

Not even Avery Brundage, the high priest of the amateur ideal, could have said it better.

When the charismic Toomey was still a novice at the decathlon, a gruelling ten-event test of skill and endurance, he failed to make the 1964 Olympic team. But he flew to Tokyo at his own expense — fortunately he comes from a wealthy family —for an eye-witness study of the decathlon competition.

"I'm going to win the next Olympic decathlon championship," he promised then. He kept his promise.

Decathlon men normally perform their exhausting chores in total obscurity for three years. Then they emerge from this overlong hibernation each Olympic year to move into the glamour spot of the greatest of international shows. An inch over 6 feet in height and a solid 195 pounds in weight the blue-eyed Toomey is admirably equipped for this supreme test in versatility.

Instead of resting on his laurels after setting an Olympic record in the decathlon at Mexico City, Toomey took dead aim at the world all-around record of 8,319 points that has been held by Kurt Bendlin of West Germany. Not until his eleventh decathlon competition of a busy year did he achieve it with 8,417 points. Unfortunately, it came a week after the A.A.U. had listed its nominees for the Sullivan Award, a list that fortunately was amended.

The Toomey table of excellence from his best event to his worst shows this: 100-meter dash, long jump, 400-meter run, high hurdles, high jump, pole vault, javelin throw, discus throw, shot put and 1,500-meter run. He's best in events requiring speed and agility, weakest in muscle events.

I'll never forget a paignant remark he made to me in Mexico City when I asked him why he tortured himself to become a decathlon winner.

"I think it's fun," he said. "Besides, my dad gets such a kick out of what I accomplish. It's my way of saying to him, 'Thanks for everything.' "

Cyclones Slip By Huskies

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State overcame a shaky start and went on to defeat Northern Illinois 97-90 in a nonconference college basketball victory here Thursday night.

Northern Illinois' 90 points was the highest ever scored against the Cyclones at home. The previous high was 88 by Kansas State in 1952.

The Cyclones moved their season mark to 8-8 with the win. The loss dropped the Huskies to 6-8.

The game seesawed through the second half until Jim Abrahamson drove the length of the court to break an 85-all deadlock and give the Cyclones an 87-85 lead in the final two minutes.

Iowa State then iced it at the charity stripe on eight consecutive free throws, four by Jack DeVilder, two by Bill Cain and a pair by Rick Engel.

Cain paced the Cyclones with 29 points and 19 rebounds before fouling out with four seconds to play. He had help from DeVilder's career high of 19 points, Abrahamson with 15, Dave Collins with 15 and reserve Engel with 12.

Sophomore Jerry Zielinski paced Northern Illinois with 32 points. He was followed by Don Russell with 17 and Nate Mason with 16.

Weather Hurts Crosby Tourney

. . . GALLERIES STILL LARGE

Pebble Beach, Calif. (AP) — Four players, led by veteran Bob Goalby, sloshed and slogged through the muck and goo of the Monterey Peninsula Thursday and shared the first round lead in the $125,000 Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tournament with 67s.

Tied with the graying former Masters champion are Bert Yancey, who says he's changing his personality, Ron Cerrudo and Bob Murphy.

Yancey and Goalby played the Cypress Point course, Murphy, Spyglass Hill and Cerrudo, Pebble Beach, under this tournament's unusual format which requires the 168 teams of a pro and an amateur to rotate over the three courses on the first three rounds.

The field will be cut after the third round for the finals over the Pebble Beach course. All three courses carry par 72s.

Scores generally were low in this tournament traditionally plagued by foul weather. It remains one of the most prestigious and popular on the tours, however, with huge galleries drawn by the show business celebrities who make up much of the amateur field.

Six players were tied at 68, just one stroke back. They are defending champion George Archer, Tom Shaw, a two-time winner last year, Jim Wiechere, Canadian George Knudson, Hugh Royer and veteran Howie Johnson.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino are in the big crowd at 69, still very much in contention.

Two weeks of rain let up Thursday, but fog shrouded the course much of the time and all three courses were drenched. As usual water puddled and pooled over all the course and players were allowed to move their shots to drier ground...

Bob Stanton, an Australian playing out of New Orleans, and John Gimmia, a New Orleans businessman, had a best ball of 59 and led the pro-am standings. Stanton had a 74.

Murphy and Tom Vickers, Wichita, Kans., had a 60 while the group of seven teams at 61 included Yancey and singer Andy Williams, Bob Rosburg and pro football's John Brodie, and Roberto Bernardini and singer Howard Keel.

The 24-year-old Cerrudo birdied all four par three holes, ran in putts of 15 and 10 feet on two other holes and had a single bogey when he was buried in a trap.

Yancey, a one-time West Point cadet, had seven birdies and a double bogey, on the 17th where he pushed his second shot into the Pacific. His birdie putts included long efforts of 20, 20, 2[illegible] and 40 feet.

"I used to be something of a sourpuss, Yancey said. "But now I try to talk with the people and have some fun. It's lots more fun this way."

Goalby said a good driver was the key to his game but a 20 foot birdie putt on the tough 17th gave him a share of the lead.

Murphy counted four birdies and a bogey. He three putted going out, and took an eagle on the 11th a short par five. He was on in two and ran in a nine foot putt.

Congress To Outlaw Reserve Clause?

. . . SOLON INTRODUCES BILL TO END BASEBALL'S PRIVILEGE

Washington (AP) — A New York Congressman has introduced a bill to outlaw organized baseball's reserve clause, now being challenged by Curt Flood in the courts under the antitrust laws.

Rep. John W. Wydler, a Nassau County Republican, said baseball operates under a privileged sanctuary enjoyed by no other sport.

'It's time for the Congress to make clear that the agreements to eliminate competition among baseball teams are un-American, undesirable and clearly in restraint of trade and a violation of the human rights and dignities of American citizens," he said.

Flood, a star outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals for 12 years, was traded last fall to Philadelphia. However, he retained former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg as his counsel and began a legal test of baseball's reserve clause — which binds a player to a team until he retires or is traded.

The $90,000-a-year outfielder is asking that the major leagues show cause why he should not be permitted to negotiate as a free agent.

At a hearing in the case in New York Tuesday, further action was delayed until Feb. 3 on the request of organized baseball.

Wydler, a four-term congressman, said the purpose of the reserve clause "is to reduce costs of the owners of baseball teams by eliminating competition for players' services.

"This is a right enjoyed by no other American industry," he said. "Industries dependent on stars and leading figures, such as movie companies, and other American sports exist without benefit of the extra special protection the reserve clause.

"The plain fact is that baseball is a business and it should meet the same business standards as another business in our country. It's present special privileges are against public policy and should be brought to an end," said Wydler.

Flood has contended that his trade left him two choices: to refuse to report to Philadelphia, thus losing a chance to play, or to report to the Phillies and "lose the rights" of a free man.

Wydler said the U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1922, which baseball relies on to defend its case, stated that interstate aspects of baseball were only incidental.

Track Managers Hesitant Over Exacta Wagering

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska race tracks were given permission Thursday by the State Racing Commission to offer race-goers another form of betting, but there was no rush by most of the track managers to order added pari-mutuel equipment.

The State Racing Commission, which had given permission Tuesday for Madison Downs to use Exacta betting this summer, Thursday added Nebraska's other five tracks to that list.

Butch Moyer, director of racing at Madison, had asked for permission to add the extra form of betting, but other track managers indicated Thursday they planned to take a wait-and-see attitude on the matter.

Harry Farnham of Omaha, chairman of the Racing Commission, said tracks had been given permission to use the Exacta betting on the last race each day plus one other race on the card.

Exacta betting involves picking both the win and place horses for a $2 ticket. The payoffs normally will run much larger than returns for straight win, place or show betting.

Farnham emphasized that permission was given only on a one-year trial basis.

Henry Brandt, manager of the Lincoln race meeting, said he doubted if racing fans would see the new form of wagering at this summer's State Fairgrounds meeting.

"I don't think I'm interested in it," Brandt said Thursday. "I'm not sure the Exacta is what we would want in the form of multiple betting."

Brandt said there were a couple of factors making him a bit leery about adding the Exacta.

"It would add to our cost of operation because we'd have to buy more machines and hire more people to run them," he pointed out. "And I'm not sure the increase in the number of large payoffs would be a good thing.

"I think a big payoff is all right once in awhile, but if we had the Exacta, we'd be putting large sums of money in a few people's hands and it might cut down on our mutuel handle."

Brandt added he'd like to wait and see how the Exacta works at other tracks before trying it at Lincoln.

Tom Brock, general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben, also was taking a wait-and-see attitude.

"Since the commission has authorized it, we'll study it, but whether we'd adopt it would be up to our racing committee," Brock said.

Al Swihart, general manager at Grand Island's Fonner Park, which opens the Nebraska racing season on March 20 this year, said, "I'm going to give it some strong thought, but I can't say at this time whether we'll add it or not."

Federal Judge Says Dawson Must Testify

Detroit (UPI) — A federal judge ruled Thursday that Donald J. Dawson, 48, charged as part of an alleged nationwide betting ring involving sports celebrities, will have to testify before a special 23-member grand jury.

Judge Lawrence J. Gubow denied a request for an immediate pretrial examination for Dawson, of Birmingham, Mich., who was arrested on New Year's Day at the start of a series of Federal arrests in the case.

Dawson's lawyer, Joseph B. Sullivan, sought to stop the grand jury from questioning his client because of "the deluge of prejudicial publicity" after the arrests.

—SEEKS DISTRICT GLOVES TITLE—

Fairbury Boxing Group Paced By Edwards, Griffin

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Bill Edwards, a veteran of more than 100 fights, and Dan Griffin, a 16-year-old high school student with only four bouts behind him, will lead a 12-man Fairbury team into the Southeast District Golden Gloves next Wednesday and Thursday nights at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Fairbury is the only team other than Roberts Dairy to win a Southeast District team title in the last dozen years with the Roberts team under the direction of now-retired coach Larry Emery winning 11 of the last 12 championships.

With Edwards and Griffin leading the way, Fairbury can expect to battle for the team title this year with the Lincoln Aamco and Roberts teams.

Edwards, a former Southeast District champion, will be making his first appearance since a losing effort against Tony Drake in the 147-pound finals at Pershing Auditorium a year ago.

Griffin, who reached the minimum age only this season, has scored three knockouts in his first four amateur fights and must be rated a strong contender for the 156-pound title next week.

Listed among his knockout victims is Rich Olson of the Lincoln Aamco team, who was named the outstanding fighter in a recent smoker at Hastings.

Griffin stopped Olson on a TKO in the second round in the final Lincoln smoker of the season two weeks ago.

Two other strong title contenders on the Fairbury team are Jim Waters at 165 pounds and Gene Trouba, the 1969 champion at 178 pounds, who could return at that weight or go in as a heavyweight when action gets under way Wednesday night.

Trouba lost a decision to Sal Muratella of Aamco in his first outing of the season a week ago in a Fairbury smoker.

He reached the Midwest Golden Gloves semifinals before losing a year ago.

Other expected Fairbury entries are Jerry Westoff at 112 pounds, Sid Fentress, 119; Ron Phillips, 119; Gary Westoff, 119; Stan Fentress, 125; Mike Osborne, 139; Dan Archer, 165; and Steve Fentress, 178.

Action will get under way both nights at 8 p.m. Weigh-ins will be held Wednesday afternoon.

—MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP PREFERS BOXING TO ACTING—

Italian Athletes Try To Lift Floundering Movie Industry

Rome (AP) — Italy has a new crop of athletes turned actors. It's all part of an effort by the Italian movie industry to cash in on the popularity of sports idols, at a time when the box office is floundering but stadiums booming.

The middleweight boxing champion Nino Benvenuti, says: "It is nothing unusual. In the United States they have Jim Brown, the football star, busy hugging Raquel Welch."

Benvenuti, between his victorious title defense against American Challenger Don Fullmer in December 1968 and Fraser Scott last October, packed a pistol and rode a horse in an Italian Western called "Alive or Preferably Dead."

Benvenuti stars opposite Italy's top cowboy actor Giuliano Gemma.

"I prefer boxing," says Benvenuti, "but acting is fun. I like it and I might continue long after I have left the ring. I am now 31 and my boxing career will not go on for many more years."

For his debut as an actor he reportedly received 70 million lire or a $112,000.

Handsome motorcycle champion Giacomo Agostini, 27, has won five world titles so far. At first, the dark-haired, blue-eyed driver ventured into photo comic strips, then made the jump to films.

"But I am only 5 feet 5 inches high," he complained. "I don't know whether this will hamper my career as an actor. I would regret it because with show business you get a lot of money with no risk. It's nothing like racing."

Agostini didn't stray far from the track. He stars in "Formula One," a film on auto racing. His leading lady is Czechoslovak actress Olinka Berova. Triple jumper Guiseppe Gentile, 25-year-old bronze medalist at the 1968 Olympics, wanted to concentrate on his studies. But Italian director Pier Paolo Pasolini talked him into playing Jason in "Medea" opposite Maria Callas in her screen debut.

Pasolini said he wanted Gentile for the Greek tragedy "because of his exceptional physical structure and his resemblance to the picture I had in mind of the leader of the Argonauts."

Tennis star Nicola Pietrangeli, will star in "Matchball," a film directed by a longtime personal friend, Duccio Tessari, Pietrangeli is gradually phasing out of tennis anyway.

Pilots Chartering Course From Seattle Homeland

. . . DALLAS TOP CHOICE FOR NEW FRANCHISE

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The troubled Seattle Pilots of the American League appeared Thursday to be heading somewhere — and a likely choice for their baseball franchise switch was Dallas-Forth Worth.

The franchise is "up for grabs . . . it is no longer rooted in Seattle," William Daley, a major owner of the Pilots, was quoted as saying. "The American League has no other choice but to move the franchise."

Seattle's franchise was on the market after Fred Danz, a Seattle businessman, was unable to meet a Thursday deadline set by the league to come up with a $3.5 million loan plan to keep the Pilots on the West Coast.

The matter will be decided officially at a league meeting in Oakland on Tuesday.

"It could be Dallas or Milwaukee," Daley said in interviews with the Seattle Times and the Cleveland Plain-Dealer. "The league will decide that in its meeting. The league has given the city every opportunity to come forward and solve the financial crisis . . . but the business community of Seattle, including their banks, were not able to do it."

Dallas-Fort Worth appeared to be a likely choice because of Milwaukee's proximity to two American league franchises, Chicago and Minnesota.

The Houston Chronicle reported that the American League, despite denials, had already authorized the transfer of the franchise to Texas.

And Lamar Hunt, owner of the pro football champion Kansas City Chiefs, and Tommy Mercer, a Fort Worth millionaire, said Thursday they have applied for the transfer.

Mercer, one of the owners of the Fort Worth-Dallas Spurs of the Class AA Texas League, said he was "highly optimistic" about getting the franchise.

Danz said he hoped to present a plan to save the franchise at the Tuesday meeting, but baseball people doubted it.

President Joe Cronin of the American League said the league would receive a report on the Seattle situation at the Tuesday meeting and that the Chronicle report was "not accurate."

"No action has been taken formally or informally," he concluded.

Elks To Sponsor Free Throw Meet Saturday

An Elks Club free throw contest for boys 11-12-13 will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Lincoln YMCA.

Bill Woltemade, chairman of the contest said boys would be put into age groups according to their age as of Feb. 13. Each boy will shoot 25 free throws and Woltemade said they must wear gym shoes when they show up at the YMCA.

OSU's Dickey Accepts Post With Sooners

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Jim Dickey, assistant football coach at Oklahoma State University the past four years, will join the University of Oklahoma as defensive secondary coach.

OU head Coach Chuck Fairbanks announced the move Wednesday night.

Dickey, 36, replaces Billy Gray, who resigned recently to enter private business. The new Sooner coach's appointment is subject to approval of the Board of Regents.

"Many people may feel this is unusual for me to hire a coach from a rival school," said Fairbanks, "but Coach Dickey and I have maintained many years of close association after having worked together at the University of Houston."

Both Fairbanks and Dickey were assistant coaches at Houston in 1963-64-65. The following year Dickey joined the Oklahoma State staff and Fairbanks went to Oklahoma.

Alabama Hero's Waistline, Legend Continue To Grow

. . . HOWELL RECOVERING FROM SURGERY

Hollywood, Calif. (AP) — Former Alabama football hero Millard "Dixie" Howell, co-author of one of the Rose Bowl's most memorable chapters, glanced at his growing waistline and observed with a grin:

"I've got to stop drinking so many of those dad-gummed milkshakes."

Howell is recuperating from major tumor surgery. And in typical good humor he advised friends at his Hollywood apartment Thursday:

"I just ordered two new suits. My doctor said maybe one would be enough. But I lost so much weight the hip pockets of my pants were joining together.

"Now I'm up to 174 which is about 10 pounds over my playing weight."

Dixie, who swears he doesn't feel his 57 years nor does he look it, disclosed he has returned to work. He is a publicity and sales representative for a trucking firm.

He and his boss, Ralph Snyder, and their wives spent a few days at a dude ranch recently near Tucson, Ariz., and Dixie, who coached at Arizona State in 1938-39-40-41, had "a great reunion with a lot of my old players.

"I feel fine but the shots I have to take knock me out as a rule for a day or two," he related.

That 1935 Rose Bowl game is still a wonderful memory, of course. Alabama was unbeaten and Stanford's Vow Boys were a great team.

With quarterback Howell passing and Don Hutson receiving, the two combined to gain 367 yards to Stanford's total output of 288 and 'Bama won 29-13. Dixie was voted Back of the Game.

Howell played one year with the Washington Redskins in pro football. A rookie played ahead of him. The rookie: Sammy Baugh.

His teammates also included Turk Edwards, Erny Pinckert and Cliff Battles. "I was a little guy next to those giants," Dix recalls.

He also remembers the last game with the Redskins against the New York Giants. There was no roughing the passer in those days.

"We were open game," said Dixie. "On the final play I threw the ball and then ran as hard as I could for the dugout."

Howell is candid about the future. "I just trust in God and my physician, Dr. Irwin Zeavin, whom I can't thank enough."

Dixie and his pretty wife, Peggy, said they were swamped with letters, telegrams and prayers when news of his operation came out.

"I didn't know I had so many friends," he related. "They came from all over, and there was an autographed football from Bear Bryant and the Alabama football team."

KU To Make Improvements

Lawrence, Kan. (UPI) — Plans for an all-weather football field, the first in the Big Eight Conference, and an all-purpose indoor surface in Allen Fieldhouse at the University of Kansas were announced Thursday by Athletic Director Wade Stinson.

Stinson said neither project was as yet finalized.

He added, however, that installation of the all-weather gridiron in Memorial Stadium, which seats 51,500, was expected to be completed in time for Kansas' first home football game next fall.

The indoor facility in Allen Fieldhouse will be similar to the all-level floor at the University of Tennessee, which is considered one of the most progressive indoor athletic facilities in collegiate sports. No date was immediately set for installation of the indoor floor, but Stinson said it would be "as soon as possible."

He said the all-weather football field will be either tartan, manufactured by the 3-M Co., or Astroturf, made by the Monsanto Co. Both outdoor and indoor surfaces, Stinson said, would be paid for by the athletic department and through private donations.

The all-weather football field will be the first of its kind in the Big Eight and the second such gridiron facility in the state of Kansas. Wichita State University already has such a playing surface.

Links Face Rugged Test From Invading Columbus

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sportswriter

Two games Friday night and a single intra-city clash on Saturday highlight the high school basketball slate in Lincoln this weekend.

Two Capital City quintets face the challenge of teams which threaten to join the state's top ten ratings.

Lincoln High, currently ranked No. 10, hosts Columbus at Johnson Gym Friday night, while Southeast entertains Hastings at the same time in the East High Gym.

The local battle Saturday night features Northeast and Pius X at Pershing Auditorium.

Columbus, kept out of the ratings by an early-season loss to Kearney, knocked off previously unbeaten Fremont last weekend. The Discoverers hope to use the Links as a springboard to vault into the select group.

Coach Alden Johnson's Lincoln High club, despite four defeats to teams above them in the ratings, will be trying to rebound from a three-game losing streak.

The Southeast-Hastings contest features two teams trying to recover from early season woes. Coach Wally McNaught's Southeast Knights, after losing their first six starts, have won two of their last three.

Hastings, considered a possible state tourney entry, despite its record, will be looking for its first victory after seven straight losses.

Northeast, No. 2 rated in the state and winner of the state title two of the last three years, will be favored over Class B Pius X. The Rockets have dropped but a single encounter thus far. The Thunderbolts have captured but one while suffering seven setbacks.

Both quintets preceeded their intra-city meeting with a Friday night game on the road. Northeast travels to Norfolk, while Pius X goes to Beatrice.

The other game which could affect the state's top ten ratings comes Saturday night when East High journeys to North Platte.

East, currently rated No. 9, takes on a Bulldog five which won its first six before bowing to Scottsbluff last weekend.

North Platte enjoyed a top ten rating until that defeat and will hope to use a home-court win over the Spartans to bounce back into the picture.

East, though 5-2 on the campaign, suffered its two losses to Omaha Central and Tech, both higher than the Spartans in the ratings.

Broncs Buck Dana, 87-62

Blair (AP) — Bill Johnson pumped in 27 points here Thursday night and led the Broncos of Hastings College to an 87-62 basketball victory over Dana College.

Hastings took an early lead and was never headed as it coasted to the triumph. The Broncos led 41-28 at the half.

Jeff Beatty was high for Dana with 14 points.

Hastings ..... 41 46—87
Dana ..... 28 34—62

Hastings — Johnson 27, Koch 14, Wassenberg 17, Higgins 8, Jensen 10, Ptak 3, Yost 2, Iburg 2, Givler 2, Kramr 2.
Dana —Beatyy 14, Janke 10, Glock 8, McLaughlin 6, Miner 6, Stoll 5, Moerer 4, Bott 3, Ressell 2, Lauritsen 2, Gethmann 1, Uchtman 1.

Fishing Report

Outdoor activity across Nebraska the past week has been varied, ranging from ice fishing in the Panhandle to cottontail, squirrel, and coyote hunting in the eastern part of the state, say Game and Parks Commission men in the field.

Cold weather has kept hunting and fishing pressure down, but activity was expected to increase as the vanguard of a warming trend moved across the state Thursday.

A summary of outdoor activity across the state, by district, includes:

PANHANDLE

Ice fishermen can take their choice of several hotspots in the area. Box Butte Reservoir near Hemingford is providing the bulk of the action, yielding walleye averaging 1 pound, trout from 1 to 4½ pounds, and northern pike weighing in at up to 3½ pounds. Minnows fished near the bottom are the best bait, and the morning is the best time. Island Lake on the Crescent Lake National Wildlife Refuge has northerns from 3 to 5 pounds hitting beef steak and liver. Whitney Lake is yielding 4-pound walleye and 10-inch perch, both on minnows.

SOUTHWEST

Perch measuring about 10 inches are hitting minnows and fish eyes at Sutherland Reservoir. Squirrel and rabbit hunters are scarce.

SOUTHEAST

Coyote hunters are having mixed success, scoring well in some localities and going empty-handed in others. Some rabbit hunters have been out, but cold weather has kept hunting pressure down.

NORTHEAST

Rabbit and squirrel hunting in bluff areas has been good, in spite of cold weather. Ice fishing has been productive in Missouri River backwaters, and farm ponds are yielding bluegill and bass.

SAND HILLS

Pelican and Dewey lakes on the Valentine National Wildlife Refuge have been good bets for angling action. Northern pike taken from Pelican Lake have averaged about four pounds, but occasional 12 pound lunkers have also been landed. Most of the action at Dewey Lake has centered around perch.

Smith In Action In Omaha Tennis Tourney, Jan. 28

Omaha (AP) — Stan Smith of Southern California, the nation's top-ranked tennis player, has entered the Midlands International Indoor Tennis Championships at Omaha's Civic Auditorium Jan. 28-Feb. 1.

Smith's entry means five of the top six players in the country will compete in the Midlands tournament. Others are Cliff Richey, Clark Graebner, Bob Lutz and Charlie Pasarell.

Smith, 24, is, at 6 feet-4, one of the tallest players on the tennis circuit. As a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, he scored two singles victories and teamed with Lutz for the doubles victory in the Davis Cup Challenge Round match against Romania last September.

Crealy Wins Over Smith In Upset

Sydney, Australia (AP) — Dick Crealy, a second stringer on the Australian Davis Cup team, upset Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., the United States' No. 1 player, Thursday in the Australian and New South Wales Tennis Championships.

The defeat of Smith left Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., as America's chief hopes of taking the title last won by a U.S. representative in 1959. The winner then was Alex Olmedo.

Crealy, playing with confidence and matching Smith's serving and volleying power at every turn, disposed of the tall Californian 6-4, 6-4, 14-12.

Smith put up his greatest fight in the third set. With Crealy serving for the match at 5-4 and 9-8, each time after breaking the American's service, the U.S. Davis Cup ace rebroke service to tie the match.

Crealy finally broke the American a third time in the 25th game and then served out the match.

Smith was seeded fifth, Crealy 12th.

Ralston, appearing in top form, easily erased Allan Stone, another member of the Australian Davis Cup team, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Top-seeded Tony Roche, who has been suffering from a sore elbow, made his first appearance in the tournament and eliminated fellow Australian John Cooper 8-6, 11-9, 6-4.

In other matches, second-seeded John Newcombe of Australia beat Phil Dent of Australia 6-2, 6-3, 6-3; Tom Okker of The Netherlands beat John Alexander of Australia 7-5, 10-8, 10-12, 4-6, 6-4, and Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia beat Tom Gorman of Seattle 6-3, 13-11, 9-11, 3-6, 6-1.

In a third round women's match, Willie Shaw of Britain eliminated Wendy Gilchrist of Australia 7-5, 6-3.

Newcastle Coach Dies In Mishap

Newcastle, Neb. (UPI) — Michael L. Nelson, 23, basketball coach at Newcastle High School, was fatally injured in a one car accident about 4 miles east of Newcastle on Nebraska 12 Thursday morning.

The state patrol said Nelson was in a westbound car driven by James Walsh, 31, the high school principal. The car left the road and landed in a deep ditch.

Walsh and Con Aubert, 32, football coach at the high school, were reported in satisfactory condition in a Sioux City hospital.

Tough With Men On

With men on base during the World Series the Baltimore Orioles batted .262, getting 11 hits in 42 chances. Six of those hits helped in the scoring of seven runs. The Orioles scored only nine runs in the five games.

Little Fry Basketball

Chubbyville 32, Commonwealth Elec. 24; Moose Lodge 52, First Natl. Bank 20.

Ribicoff Says Hot Dog Rule Is 'Subverted' By Ag Dept.

Washington (AP) — Agriculture Department officials quietly "subverted" a new U.S. regulation ordering meat packers to limit to 30% the fat content of hot dogs, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said Thursday.

At a Senate hearing, Ribicoff surprised Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, by producing an Agriculture Department memo which told regional directors to set no deadline for enforcement of the regulation.

In a hearing last July, Mrs. Knauer gave her office credit for bringing about the fat limit order.

'Outrageous'

"Behind her back and behind the public's back, the Agriculture Department subverted its own regulations," Ribicoff said in an interview. "I think it's outrageous."

The memo, which was sent out over the signature of Irwin Fried, an official of the processed food inspection division of the department's Consumer and Marketing Service, told regional directors:

"One point we must emphasize is that we will not take hasty action in enforcing the regulations. There will be no set deadline for enforcement of the regulations. We will give cooperating management time to adjust their formulas . . ."

In a telephone interview, Fried said the department never intended to subvert its own regulation.

'Need Time'

"You need time to implement such things," Fried said.

He said more than 99% of major hot dog manufacturers representing 85% of production are complying with the order.

He said other smaller firms did not have the laboratory testing equipment needed to comply. And he said the department is running reports on compliance and noncompliance through its computer.

At the hearing of a government operations subcommittee, Mrs. Knauer said she had never heard of the memo.

"If we hadn't heard about it, nobody would have known but the people in the hot dog business," Ribicoff said.

Deadline Oct. 23

The deadline for enforcement of the fat content order was Oct. 23.

Previous to the order there had been no limit on the amount of fat or other products which could be placed in hot dogs.

Mrs. Knauer appeared in behalf of an administration bill which would split consumer protection authority between a White House office and the Justice Department.

JOE NAMATH

Namath Not 'Out To Get Fast Buck'

Washington (UPI) — Novice entrepreneur Joseph W. Namath said Thursday he is not one of those celebrities who cashes in on his name "trying to make a fast buck." He said the Broadway Joe restaurants which will soon spring up around the country will be good places to eat.

Namath, wearing a powder blue suit and a navy blue shirt with white polkadots, was a voluntary witness before the Senate subcommittee on urban and rural economic development of the select committee on small business. It is investigating the franchising industry.

He said that when he gives up quarterbacking for the New York Jets professional football team, he intends to devote his energies to the restaurant chain. He said he knew the quality of food and service would be more important to its success than his name or reputation.

His appearance went without a flaw until, at the end, Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., addressed him as "Senator Namath."

The red-faced Williams then corrected himself as laughter filled the stuffy hearing room.

"Your appearance here represents the best in the United States — people willing to put themselves out and come to Washington to advise congressional committees . . .," Williams told Namath.

Namath said he knew "celebrities have been accused of trying to make a fast buck" by lending their names to enterprises in which they had no interest. But that is not the case with Broadway Joe's, Inc., he said.

Panthers Plan To Drive Out Drug Pushers

New York (AP) — The Black Panther Party announced a program Thursday to harass and drive dope pushers out of a Negro section of Queens, even if it means taking on the Mafia.

The target area is the Corona-East Elmhurst section, just west of Shea Stadium and the old World's Fair site.

"We're going to stop them on the streets, take their pictures and put them on wanted posters," said Carlton Yearwood, a Panther defense captain in Queens.

"We don't care if they like it or not. We're going to their homes, the parties they go to and the places in which they hang out. They'll have no place to hide.

"We realize we may have to open confrontation with the Mafia, but that doesn't scare us because the people are on our side."

Panther officials told a news conference their program is the outgrowth of two recent deaths from overdoses of dope — that of a 12-year-old Harlem boy and a 15-year-old in Queens.

Pill Is Endorsed

Toronto (UPI) — The Canadian Medical Association endorsed the use of birth control pills.

Divers Salvage 60,000 Bottles Of Champagne

Folkestone, England (AP) — Prowling 100-foot depths in the English Channel where a French coaster sank 15 years ago, a Folkestone divers' team headed by Dennis Pearce salvaged 60,000 bottles of champagne.

After an impromptu party, a spokesman said: "The champagne was in pretty good condition. By the end of the day the men weren't." What's left will be sold at a profit after payment of customs at $4.32 a gallon.

Fed-Up Commuters 'Hijack' Subway Trains

New York (AP) — Some commuters, frustrated by late and overcrowded subway trains, have started "hijacking" subways, forcing the train they're on to take them where they want to go.

The hijackers, their anger increased by the recent fare increase from 20 to 30 cents, have jammed the doors and refused to get off the trains.

The commuters, many of them from New Jersey, seek to get to the 175th Street station on the New York side of the George Washington Bridge. There they get buses for northern New Jersey destinations.

To do this, they must take the Independent line A train that runs to 207th Street.

Usually Jammed

But the A — an express — usually is so jammed that many riders prefer to take the B — a local — to 168th Street. Then they wait there for the A to go one more station to 175th.

Waiting for the A, however, has become a nerve-shattering experience. It is not unusual for five and six B trains to unload at 168th Street before an A comes along.

A week ago, rebellious commuters refused to get off the B train. Some simply sat down in their cars. Others stood in the doorways and refused to move.

"Everyone off, this is the last stop," came the tinny voice over the loudspeaker.

"No, we won't get off," shouted many of the commuters. "Take it to 175th Street."

"The next B will go all the way," said the man at the microphone.

Rebels Sense Victory

"No," yelled back the rebels, sensing a victory. "This one goes."

Finally, after two minutes of silence, the voice came back.

"All right, all on the train. The B is going to 207th Street."

It happened again at 168th Street Wednesday evening.

This time victory came quicker. The "voice" gave in on the first rebellion. Only this time 90% of the passengers had remained in the cars.

ADM Reports Net Earnings Of $1.60 Per Share

Net earnings of $1.60 per share through the last quarter of 1969 was reported by the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. of Decatur, Ill.

President Lowell W. Andreas said this compares with net earnings per share of $1.20 during the same period of 1968.

Andreas also said that net operating earnings and provisions for state and federal income taxes during the 1969 period were higher than during 1968.

Washington Trio Hits Credit Union To Net $128,000

Washington (UPI) —Three bandits, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, stole $128,000 Thursday from a credit union office in the Commerce Department just a block from the White House grounds. They escaped on foot.

The large amount of money was on hand because Thursday was payday at all federal agencies and the credit union cashes a lot of checks.

FBI agents joined District of Columbia police in a search for the thieves, who entered the building shortly before the credit union office opened for business.

Iowa Trying To Prevent Violence From Beef Plant Strike, Says Ray

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Gov. Robert Ray, meeting Thursday with eight legislators from northwest Iowa, said the state is doing all it possibly can to prevent violence connected with the long Iowa Beef Packers, Inc. strike.

"We're providing every bit of assistance the state can possibly provide," Ray said.

He noted the Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation has sent agents to the particular trouble spots in northwest Iowa where sporadic bombings and other violence has erupted in recent months.

Members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America struck the Dakota City, Neb., plant Aug. 24. Despite meetings between labor and management, the lengthy strike remains unresolved.

It had been suggested Ray might meet with the governors of Nebraska and South Dakota to further discuss resolution of the violence.

'No Suggestions'

Ray said, however, "No one had any suggestions about what we could accomplish by simply meeting together."

He added that the National Guard "could not really solve the problem." He said he saw nothing to be gained by sending Guardsmen to the area.

Ray said the lawmakers promised to do everything possible on the local level to prevent further violence. He said they vowed to meet with city officials for further discussion.

"I think they are looking for help in any diirection they can find it," Ray said.

Instances of violence have occurred in parts of the state other than the Sioux City area. Iowa Beef has plants at Fort Dodge, LeMars, Denison and Mason City.

Jurgens Enters Innocent Plea

Beatrice (AP) — Dale D. Jurgens, 22, Beatrice, was charged in Gage County Court Thursday with causing the death without malice of Kenneth Daubendiek, 31, Pickrell, in an automobile accident on a county road near Pickrell last Dec. 26.

Jurgens was driving a pickup truck and Daubendiek was driving a car when the accident occurred.

Jurgens entered a plea of innocent in court Thursday. Judge Dennis Winkle set bond at $200 and said a trial date would be scheduled some time late next month.

Sunday Judging Set In Regional Art Competition

Omaha (AP) — Judging will take place here Sunday for about 2,600 entries in a regional art contest for junior and senior high school students.

Entries include painting, drawing, printmaking, design, sculpture, crafts and photography. Regional winners will be honored at a banquet on Feb. 5 at the downtown Omaha Brandies Store, the sponsoring agency.

The judges are Richard L. Brink, assistant professor of art at Hastings College; Raymond E. George, assistant professor at the University of Nebraska, and Omaha artist Mrs. Marie Christian.

Solorio Bound Over In Yzaguirre Murder Case

Nebraska City (AP) — Al Rodriguez Solorio, 19, was bound over to district court Thursday in connection with the slaying of Alfredo Yzaguirre.

A tentative date for his arraignment was set for Feb. 6 after a preliminary hearing.

The body of the 46-year-old Yzaguirre was found Dec. 6 in a cabin in the south part of Nebraska City.

Police Chief Clarence Iversen told County Judge George Stanley he found the body of Yzaguirre lying on the floor of a cabin, where Solorio and two other youths lived.

Patrolman Marty Allgood testified that a theater manager telephoned him after Solorio had told two boys at the theater that there was a dead man in the cabin.

Market Posts Moderate Gain

New York (AP) — The stock market managed a modest gain in fairly active trading Thursday. President Nixon's State of the Union address had temporary and isolated effect on market prices.

"Investors had hoped he would zero in on the future degree of monetary restraint," said one analyst, "but it was kind of philosophical."

"I guess we'll have to wait for the budget message later this month to get details," said another who saw inconsistencies in the address as far as the general market was concerned.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 3.83 to 786.10. About the time of the Nixon speech it had been slightly higher.

Trading was a fairly active total of 11 million shares. Among the 1,559 individual issues traded, there were 665 advances and 616 declines.

Antipollution stocks showed strong gains in a speculative runup during Nixon's address, but some later lost ground in profit taking.

General Signal rose 3 to 62, Zurn Industries was unchanged at 34, ¾ Joy gained 1⅝ to 44⅝, and American Air Filter rose 2¼ to 56.

Of the 20 most-active Big Board stocks, 11 advanced, 5 declined, and 4 were unchanged.

Gulf Oil was the most-active with 231,100 shares, unchanged at 28. Volume included a 132,500 share block at 27½.

The AP 60-stock average gained .4 to 268.5, with industrials up 1.3, rails up .1, and utilities off .5 to a new 1969-70 low.

Among major categories, mail order-retail, metals, tobaccos, and building materials were higher.

Trading in blocks of 10,000 shares or more was a brisk total of 93, compared with 50 on Wednesday.

Stocks on the American exchange were mixed. The Amex price index gained 2 cents to $26.51, but declines outnumbered advances by 449 to 390 among the 1,047 issues traded.

Trading volume was 4.18 million shares.

Of the 20 most-active stocks, 13 advanced, and 7 declined.

Big block trading numbered 11, compared with 13 on Wednesday.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Bond Quotations Continue Near Historic Low Levels

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER

8% Returns

While speculators are trying to guess when new hopes and better economic prospects will turn stock prices upward, bonds continue to be quoted near their historic low levels.

Numerous well rated fixed dollar obligations are offering returns in excess of 8% and some tax free obligations sell to yield in excess of 6%.

Thus bonds here and now return what optimistic buyers of growth stocks hope they will eventually yield over the longer pull.

While there has been a rumbling of improvement in the bond market, relatively low quotation still prevail. In a current offering, one investment house offers high grade public obligations to yield between 7.90% and 8.60%.

Relative Attractiveness

As to the relative attractiveness of bonds vs. shares, the answer will depend on a time schedule and on the objectives of the investor. Externally, if the restraining efforts in Washington succeed to any substantial degree in cooling off the overheated inflationary boom, then prevailing high grade bond prices may be a non-recurring bargain.

The reluctance of investors to go bargain hunting in the bond market has reflected a variety of factors: first, if the inflation continues at the 1969 rate of an increase of 6%, then the bit yield on fixed dollar obligations will be cut down in purchasing power by further depreciation of the dollar; secondly, since Edgar Lawrence Smith wrote his landmark book "Common Stocks as a Long Term Investment", nearly 34 years ago, there has been a changeover on the part of even institutional investors and trustees from bonds and mortgages toward a larger ratio of common stocks; and thirdly, in the post-World War II period, especially since 1949, the broad trend of quickened national economic growth was long favorable to selected stocks.

Sophisticated investors compute the real return on common stocks not only in terms of current earnings but also in opportunities for capital gains. For long periods stocks have returned better than 8%. In due course, the growth pattern may be resumed, but already bonds are offering what risk takers aspire to. While fixed dollar obligations won't provide growth theoretically, many low coupon bonds are selling far below face value, and, if the money markets eventually are normalized, there will be appreciation in market prices to bring yields on old bonds in tune with those which prevail in the future on new issues.

Practical View

In order to take a practical view of the probabilities, it may be helpful to distinguish between the short term outlook and the long term prospects. Short term, the Washington fiscal and monetary authorities have tools for taking the bloom off the inflationary rose, but long-term demagoguery and the attempt to buy votes by pretending to give people something for nothing is inflationary in character. Further, though neither business nor the unions caused the inflation, which was orignated by financial malpractices at Washington, the ability of special interests to exploit the existing accumulated inflationary force should be circumscribed.

Business management, to a greater degree than generally understood, is regulated by the customer, who can punish trespassers by the undramatic act of withholding orders. In connection with durable consumer goods, customers can stretch out the life of older models, thus temporarily disobeying the law of obsolescence.

Former President Johnson hinted in an annual message to Congress that the time has come to review the existing labor-management legislation to make it conform to current realities. Congress should look into the capacity of unions to build inflation into the future by using fiat powers — created by law — to force rises in labor costs faster than improvement in productivity. This constitutes a loophole in inflation control.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Hastings Honor Band, Chorus Program Slated

Hastings — The Hastings College Department of Music will be host on Feb. 6-7 to the annual honor band and honor chorus activities, which end with a public concert at 8 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 7, in the French Memorial Chapel on the campus.

Dean Killion, professor of music and director of the band at Texas Technological College, Lubbock, will return this year as director of the honor band program. Dr. Gordon Ohlsson, chairman of the department of music, Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., who will direct the honor chorus, is a former staff member of the Hastings College department of music.

Millard Cates, chairman of the department of music at Hastings College is responsible for the honor chorus activity, and Duane Johnson, director of the Hastings College Band, is chairman of the honor band activities.

Oleson Promoted To Professorship

Crete — The first faculty member to hold the rank of associate professor at Doane College this week was elevated to full professor.

He is Registrar Loyd Oleson, who became an associate professor when the rank was created at Doane in 1942.

Prior to Oleson's appointment as associate professor only three ranks of faculty existed. These were instructor, assistant professor and professor.

Oleson graduated from Doane in 1935 and earned a master's degree from Yale in 1941. He joined the Doane faculty that year as assistant professor.

Teachers Said Unfair

San Francisco (UPI)—A General Electric Co. spokesman said that school teachers were taking sides in support of unions on strike against the company and presenting slanted material to pupils.

Iraqi Regime Executes 18 More Persons

By FAROUK NASSAR

Damascus, Syria (AP) — Eighteen military men and civilians went before firing squads or to the gallows Thursday in Iraq.

Eleven were accused of plotting against the leftist government and seven others were convicted as spies of the United States. One of the latter was identified as a Jew, Albert Nounou.

This brought to 40 the number of persons executed since the government of President Ahmed Hassan el Bakr announced Wednesday the crushing of an attempt to restore power to followers of Iraq's old monarchy. The executions were announced by Radio Baghdad.

50 More To Be Tried

The director of the official Iraq News Agency, reached from Damascus by telephone, said 50 other persons are due to go before a special court set up to try accused plotters.

The seven convicted spies had no tie with the plot to overthrow Bakr, a Baghdad broadcast said. They were sentenced to death in November.

Nounou and six others were hanged at dawn. Then a few hours later six army officers were executed by firing squads and a civilian was hanged.

Thursday afternoon two army men were shot and two civilians, one a lawyer, were hanged.

All military men were executed by firing squad and the civilians went to the gallows.

Baath Socialist

El Bakr is a Baath Socialist. He took power in a coup in 1968, one of several since Republicans brought down Iraq's pro-Western monarchy and killed King Faisal in 1958.

The United States, Iran, West Germany and Israel all have been accused by Iraq of participating in the latest plot.

The Iranian ambassador and four members of his embassy have been ordered out of the country. So too have the staff of Iranian consulates in Baghdad, Basra and Karbala. Their offices have been closed. Iran countered by expelling Iraqi diplomats from Tehran.

Taiwanese Escapes Nationalists

©The New York Times

New York — Peng Ming-min, a prominent member of the Taiwan Independence Movement who had been living under house arrest in Taipei, has escaped from the island.

The Taiwan Independence Movement holds that the island should be governed by the Taiwanese, descendants of early immigrants from South China, instead of by the Nationalist regime, which is dominated by refugees who fled the mainland in 1949 with Chiang Kai-shek. The Taiwanese constitute about 85% of the population.

In a telephone interview from abroad — he insisted that his whereabout be kept secret — Peng, who was formerly chairman of the political science department at Taiwan University, said that he had fled Taiwan "because the problem of my safety was becoming more and more serious. The only way for me to be sure of my future was to get out."

Peng's arrest and conviction in 1964 for trying to overthrow the government created widespread controversy. A member of an old and socially prominent Taiwanese family, Peng was sentenced to eight years in jail.

Apparently because of international pressure, the Nationalist government released him after he had served only 13 months, but he and his family have been under surveillance ever since.

Brody Cuts Record

New York (AP)—Oleomargarine heir Michael J. Brody made a record and said he gave away $10,600 he received from the recording company. He did not say to whom he gave the money.

Johnson Goes Fishing While Nixon Speaks

Acapulco, Mexico (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson went fishing Thursday while President Nixon made his first State of the Union message.

The former president, who arrived in Acapulco Wednesday on vacation, left the home of former Mexican President Miguel Aleman about 8 a.m.

Johnson and his party took two seagoing launches for a day's excursion on the Pacific.

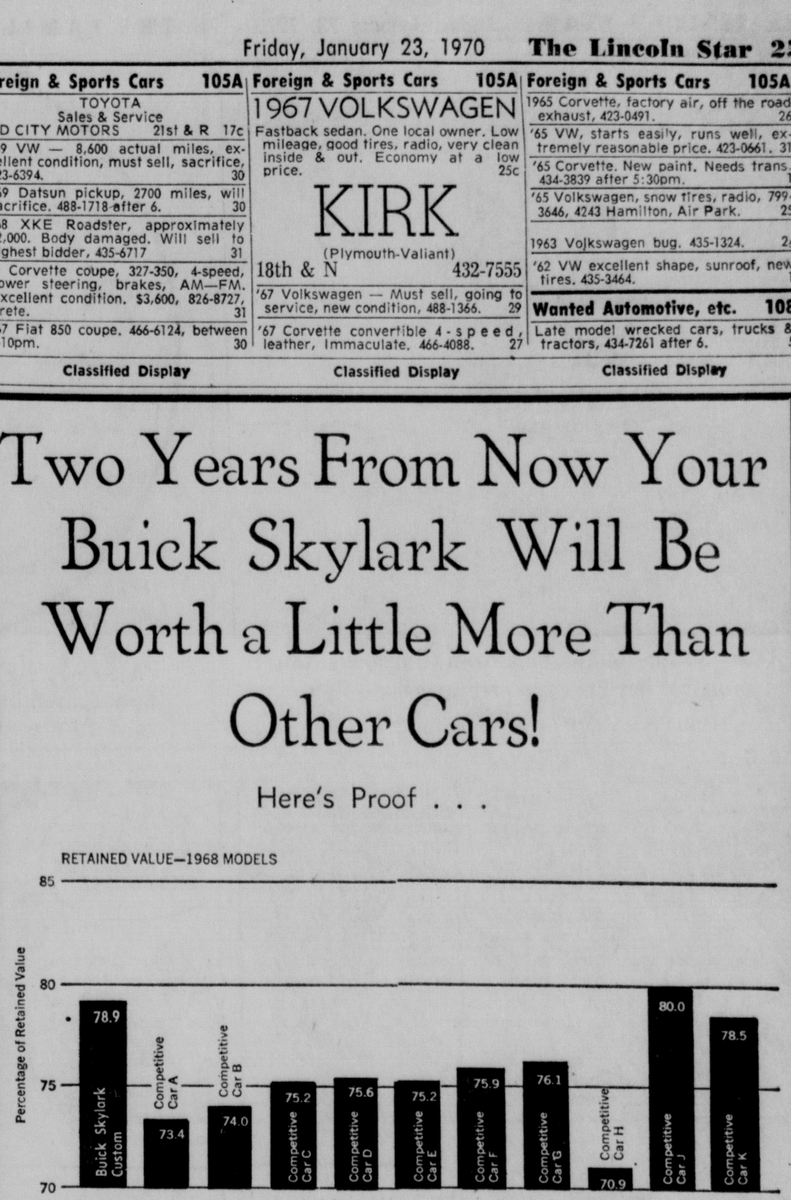
Two Years From Now Your Buick Skylark Will Be Worth a Little More Than Other Cars!

Here's Proof . . .



These charts compare Buick Skylark with ten major competitive cars. The 1968 Skylark retains up to 8.0% more of its original price than all but one of the competitive cars—or approximately $152.00. The 1967 Skylark retains up to 10.0% more than all of these competitive cars—or approximately $177.00. Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

FACE IT . . .

The story on the 1970 Buick Skylark reads like a best-selling novel. There's at least one passage that everybody enjoys. For readers who really get involved with an automobile, we offer the 1970 Skylark 2-door Sport Coupe. This beauty finished in a sea mist green has a 350 cubic inch, 260 horsepower V8 that is standard. So is an all vinyl interior, fiberglas-belted tires and a full complement of GM safety equipment. Look them up under "GREAT" at MOWBRAYS.

Come in today while we still have a wide selection of colors and equipment to choose from. If we don't have it, WE'LL BUILD ONE ESPECIALLY FOR YOU.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How To Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example, A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A X Y D L B A A X R

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
